Help us run coalition, BSP tells BJP

December 27, 2002 | AGENCIES

LUCKNOW: In a rejoinder to BJP’s criticism of frequent administrative reshuffle by UP chief minister Mayawati, the BSP asked party leaders not to make irresponsible statements against the spirit of coalition but give constructive support in running the government. “Senior BJP leaders and ministers criticising transfer of officials were working against the spirit of coalition and should desist from making such irresponsible statements which cause unnecessary controversies,” senior BSP leader and parliamentary affairs minister Sukhdev Rajbhar said in a release here.

March 9, 2009 | ET Bureau

In the last 30 years, the Congress has changed substantially. But if there is one constant, it is Pranab Mukherjee. In the 70s, as a young minister, he was trouble-shooter for Indira Gandhi and now for the new generation of Gandhis.
But in all the fire-fighting, he remain unscathed. The measure of his importance can be gauged from the fact that the external affairs minister is currently doubling as the finance minister and heads as many as 50 GoMs. The following are excerpts of an interview P R Ramesh had with Mr Mukherjee: Congress has been largely successful in running a coalition though it was a new experience.

UPA II's new coalition muscle

March 8, 2010 | CL Manoj

“The functional health of any ruling coalition depends more on the level of political will and confidence of its leading party than on the numerical strength of its constituents. The pre-nuclear deal, Leftbacked UPA-1 had, at the level of pure numbers, a much more stable strength in the Lok Sabha, well above the halfway mark, compared to UPA-II, which barely has a simple majority against a ‘united Opposition’. Yet, the reflexes of the Congress high command and the PM vis-a-vis the demands of coalition management, compared to those in the previous government, show the two have decided to lead from the front rather than let their allies bully them daily”.

Rediff.com » News» Ram Temple still on agenda; NDA is no compulsion: BJP. "Coalition is not a compulsion for us. We have proved the credibility and stability of coalition during our erstwhile tenure. We consider alliance as a religion," BJP national vice president Mukhtar Abbas Naqvi told media persons in Panaji.

"We never said Ayodhya is not on our agenda. But as far as priority is concerned, the issues like price rise, corruption, bad governance top it," BJP vice president Mukhtar Abbas Naqvi told media persons, ahead of the party’s National Executive meeting.

"We are honest as far as our ideological commitment (on temple issue) is concerned. But, in Goa we would be discussing the political issues," the leader said responding to a question.
