ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This study is concerned with the gifted children and special education. The work reflected in this study extended over more than three years and I must acknowledge the extensive help and encouragement I have received during the period.

Quite obviously the maximum assistance for this study has been received from my guide, Dr L.M. Shivanekar. I, therefore, record my grateful thanks to him.

I would like to express my sincere thanks to the Principal and the staff of Jnana Prabodhini Prashala, who allowed me to have the opportunity to carry out the research work about their past students.

At the same time I can't forget the earnest co-operation rendered by other schools and the gifted subjects included in this study. Mostly, family members of the gifted subjects had also given co-operation.

M/S High-Tech Computing Centre, Pune; provided the required facilities for keying-in and printing the text of this thesis. I am thankful to them.

I had carried out the pilot study in Adarsh Comprehensive College of Education and Research and also in Institute of Management Development and Research (IMDR), for which I am thankful to them.

Last but not the least, I wish to mention my deep sense of gratitude to my family members. Without their co-operation it was impossible to complete this task.
