ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

This thesis provides “a comparative study of the ways to enlightenment as depicted in the Aṣṭasāhasrikā Prajñāpāramitā and the Mahāsatipāṭṭhāna Sutta”. For successful accomplishment of this research project, there are many individuals who have encouraged and supported me directly or indirectly and therefore, I ardently feel that time, space and speeches will not be sufficient to express my sincere thanks to all those concerned people.

First of all, my great gratitude to my Master, Thich Nu Nhu Tri who is the first and foremost teacher in my ordained life, I am thankful to her for encouraging me to follow the Buddhist educational way and supporting finance also. Next is Mr. Serge Bywalski who kindly provided me with financial support as well as all other necessities throughout my project. My research project would not have been successfully completed without financial support of these people. Both of them encouraged me physically and mentally also. They gave me a chance to study both MA and this Ph.D degree in India.

Next, I would like to express my deepest gratitude to Prof. Ujjwala- Jha who is my supervisor. She played the most crucial role in the successful completion of this research project. She always kindly encouraged me by spending countless hours to help me reading Sanskrit Buddhist texts that related to my thesis and priceless service in correcting my thesis. Without this willing cooperation and steadfast guidance, the work would have been fruitless.

I also express my thank to the Centre of Advanced Study in Sanskrit and the authorities of the libraries such as Library of Delhi University, Cambridge University Online Library, the Library of Department of Sanskrit and Prakrit Language, the Library of Department of Philosophy in Pune University, and Jayakar Library, University of Pune for extending faculties to my research work.

Finally, I do not forget to express my gratitude to all scholars whose books and translations I have availed myself of in my own research.
