ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I would like to thank a number of people who have greatly helped in the preparation of this thesis.

My greatest debt is to Dr. Ashok Joshi, my guide, who has been a continuous and sympathetic critic, and has contributed greatly to my understanding of the subject.

I would also like to take this opportunity to formally thank my friend and fellow student, Anita Deshmukh, not only for her help in locating references and statistical compilation, but also for providing continuous support and encouragement.

I had presented a part of this thesis at the Annual Seminar for Research Students organised by the University of Poona. I have greatly benefited from the comments of the participants in the seminar. I am grateful to the University authorities for providing me with such a forum for pre-testing my ideas.

I am also indebted to Prof. Naresh Dadhich, Department of Mathematics, Prof. Anil Gore, Department of Statistics, from the University of Poona and to Kiran Moghe, Research Officer, Indian Institute of Cost and Management Studies and Research, Pune, for their valuable comments and suggestions from time to time.

On the production side, particular thanks are due to Urmila Joshi and Rose Mathew who saw the thesis through various stages of typing.

Lastly I thank my family members for suffering with me (or perhaps, without me) during the period in which this thesis was written.

The usual absolution regarding errors and omissions applies.

Pune
15th August 1985

ANAND KARANDIKAR