To

THE PRIVATE SECRETARY TO THE VICE ROY,

Delhi.

The Rajbansya-Kshatriyas assembled at Debiganj, District Jalpaiguri, Telegraph office Domar, for the institution of important social and religious reform; express their great indignation at the most heinous bomb-outrage upon Viceroy at Delhi and express their heartfelt sympathy with the Viceroy and pray God for his speedy and complete recovery.

PANCHANAN BARMA
Secretary, Kshatriya Samity.

(Proceedings of the Kshatrya Samity - 3rd Year)
Appendix – ii

The Statesman

AUGUST 11, 1899
(News Items)

The Jalpaigorie Murder Case. — Yesterday at the High Court Criminal Jurisdiction, Justice Sir Henry Prinsep delivered judgment in the case which was heard sometime ago by Justice Prinsep and Justice Hill on a reference by the Sessions Judge of Jalpaigorie, and also on the appeal of the prisoners Debendro Nath Dutt and Gopal Chunder Bose, who were convicted of murder and sentenced to death. The prisoners, who were the doctor and the head clerk, respectively, of the Sone tea garden in the Jalpaigorie district near the Bhootan frontier, were convicted of having murdered one Rai Churn Nundi who came from his native village in Jessore, of which place Gopal Chunder Bose was also a resident. The case for the prosecution was that the two prisoners, along with another person who could not be found, stabbed Rai Churn Nundi, who went to the Chamurchi frontier guard and reported the matter. The man could not at first speak, and wrote the names of the prisoners, who were then arrested the same evening. Rai Churn made several statements in writing which were the principal evidence in support of the case for the prosecution. Their Lordships, after considering the whole of the evidence and the arguments of counsel for the prisoners affirmed the conviction, but commuted the sentence of death to one of transportation for life. Mr Garth appeared for the prisoners, and Mr Abdur Rahim, Officiating Deputy Legal Remembrancer, for the Crown.

(Incidents published in The Statesman of 11.08.1899)
Appendix – iii

( Collected from the Janamat Weekly Office, Jalpaiguri)
Kshatriya Conference

Resolutions

A great Kshatriya Conference was held at Chechakhata, a village near Alipurduar Junction on Dec 12, 1959. The program was presided over by Mr. Upendra Nath Barman, M.P. and the Hon’ble Minister. Mr. Satish Chandra Sinha Roy graced the occasion as the Chief Guest. The following resolutions were unanimously adopted in that meeting:

i) This house is expressing its heart-felt grief at the demises of Dr. B. R. Ambedkar, the All India leader of Scheduled Caste and Tribe and Dr. Harendra Kumar Mukherjee, the munificent and generous Governor of West Bengal.

ii) The State Congress Committee has approved nomination to not a single SC candidate residing in the sheets of Alipurduar Sub-division though the number of SC voters in this region is not negligible. Besides, this region, among the other regions of North Bengal is the most backward in consideration with other parameters. Hence, this house is hereby raising the demand that nomination be given in at least one seat to a committed social worker belonging to SC category and having faith in the policies and principles of the Congress Party making the necessary corrections in the nomination list before the ensuing election.

iii) The system of Zamindars is a long past history. This House is therefore likes to uphold the demand to the Hon’ble Minister of Agriculture that the native Rajbanshi peasants may get the privileges of the land reforms in Bengal.

iv) The Rajbanshis are people of a backward community. They are equally backward in Education. To bring this community into the main stream what is mostly needed is to create some opportunities for them by setting up an organization. It is, therefore our earnest request that a unit be set up under the sole guidance and direct control of the Central committee.

v) The people belonging to Rajbanshi Community has, since a long time been recognized as the people of Scheduled Caste community and so a sub-committee be set up under the direct control of the Central Committee to enjoy the facilities of the reservation, promoted by the Govt. of India for the all round progress of this community along with other backward classes of this country. It is being proposed from this house that this reservation for this community be extended for another 10 years in future.

vi) Let free education up to Madhyamik level for people belonging to Scheduled Caste and Scheduled Tribe be introduced.

vii) A Health Centre and an Adult Education Centre be set up in Banchu Kamari Union viii) Arrangements be made to promote the policies embedded in the 2nd Five Years Plan of the Govt. of India and to make it a success.

ix) As per newly introduced Education Policy adopted by the Government, certain schools in urban areas will be elevated to the level equipped with the infrastructure to teach class XI. Consequently, most of the rural schools will be diminished to the standard to teach only up to class VIII. So, it is the proposal of this committee to the Government to undertake the total responsibility of raising all the High Schools to the level so that they may be equipped with the infrastructure to teach Class XI.

Sd/

Barendra Nath Roy
Secretary
Reception Committee

[Indebted to: ‘Panchanan Barma, the Great Sagacious Leader and the Inheritance of his Agitation’]
Leaflet – i

(Collected from the personal Library of Professor Ananda Gopal Ghosh)
Leaflet –i

Meanwhile, a section of the dwellers of the Dooars region of the neighbouring district Jalpaiguri initiated a massive agitation to form ‘The Greater Cooch Behar’ by adding the Dooars region to Cooch Behar. These agitators primarily began their agitation by assembling a part of the people of Rajbanshi Community and the Muslims residing in this region.

I, however, could somehow collect two of the leaflets of these agitators. Some parts of these two leaflets are given as under:

Of late the British Rulers of India have decided to abdicate the governance of this country and leave India for ever. In this circumstance, we want to merge with the land of our ancestors to appease our forefathers and to retain the culture and customs that we have observed previously. Please come, let’s meet with the Maharaja and place our earnest appeal before his honour. We hope, he will initiate the process of annexing our land with Koch Behar to satisfy the desire of our heart.

1354 B.S. the 12th Shraban

Yours,

i) Sree Bidhu Bhusan Karjee   ii) Tarani Kanta Roy

Vill: Paror Par               Vill: Raichenga

(A collection from the personal Library of Professor Ananda Gopal Ghosh)
Appendix – v
Leaflet – ii

(Collected from the personal Library of Professor Ananda Gopal Ghosh)
The appeal of the 2nd leaflet is even more important. A part of it is extracted below:

To,

The Rajbanshi and Muslim aboriginal dwellers of this region,

Dear brothers,

Today is not the day of sleeping for the Rajbanshi and Muslim aboriginal inhabitants. Today is the day of great awakening. You all know that the Western Dooars of Jalpaiguri Zilla was a part of the Koch Behar Kingdom before the coming of the British. During the British Rule it had been alienated from the national kingdom of Kooch Behar. The British Raj is quitting from power to abandon this country for ever and the Maharaja has placed the demand to regain the Dooars region, the land of our ancestors. To make his demand a success, we want the re-amalgamation of Dooars with the princely state of Koch Behar. To fulfill our demand we have no way except to be united.

This movement, although initiated in Dooars region, still had a great impact on Cooch Behar. This movement again strengthened the agitation of ‘Hitosadhani Sabha’. It has been mentioned here that the Maharaja of Koch Behar also demanded to get back the Dooars region, which evidently endorses the view that the King too had a direct contact with this movement.

(A collection from the personal Library of Professor Ananda Gopal Ghosh)
A two stringed musical instrument of the indigenous people.
‘Polo’ – An instrument used by the Rajbanshis for catching fish.
‘Chhamgan’ – using for husking by the Rajbanshis.
Illustration – iv

‘Chailonbati’ – used by the Rajbanshis in the marriage ceremony.
“Siju tree” – It is situated in the courtyard of the Mech Community.
‘Kochha’ – instrument for catching fish by the Rajbanshis.
Baikunthapur Royal Palace at Jalpaiguri
Contents:

Contribution of Rural Non-farm Activities in Household Income Generation: A Study on Khulna Region
Nishad Nasrin, Tanjila Wahid

Oil Wealth and Underdevelopment in the Niger Delta Region of Nigeria
Makodi Biereenu-Nnabugwe, Andrew O. Obiajulu and Nbert Chijioke Abah

Users’ Satisfaction towards the Sumer-house Facility in University of Kelaniya, Sri Lanka
Jayantha K., D.L.I.H.K. Peiris

A Research Study on Overall Performance of Kudumbashree Unit With Reference To Beeralthabail of Kasargod District, Kerala state
Santhosh Prabhu M.,

Effect of Promotion Strategies on the Organizational Commitment of Banking Sector Employees in Kenya
Edith W. M. Gathungu, Dr. Mike A. Iravo, Prof. G.S. Namusonge

Social group disparities in access to healthcare facilities in India and Its Selected States: A bar Diagrammatic analysis
Dr. Uttam Kumar Siloster

Body, Myth and Culture in Arekti Premer Galpo
Nilanjan Chakraborty

Evolution of Rajbanshi Society: A Historical Assessment
Pallavi Bhawal
About IOSR:

International Organization of Scientific Research (IOSR) is a registered independent Organization, a unit of CSIR delivering supports and services to education professionals and researchers around world, especially those from the developing countries.

IOSR is the association of Scientists, Research scholars, Professors, Directors, Managers, Engineers, Pharmacy persons of various fields like Engineering, Management, Pharmacy, Applied Science, and Mathematics.

IOSR helps the researchers free of cost by providing right direction in their research with the help of its worldwide research association members.

About IOSR Journals

IOSR Journals a broad-based open access, was founded on two key tenets: To publish the most exciting researches with respect to the subjects of our functional Journals. Secondly, to provide a rapid turn-around time possible for reviewing and publishing, and to disseminate the articles freely for teaching...

IOSR Journals Achievements

Today, the IOSR Journals is becoming a major international research journal editors and thesis research. We acquire, develop, market and distribute the knowledge through the dissemination of academics and practitioners from around the world. All journals published by us maintain the...

IOSR Journals Mission

Our mission is to contribute to the progress and application of scientific discoveries, by providing free access to research information online without financial, legal or technical barriers. All International...

IOSR Journals Values

At IOSR Journals we have a clear set of values for delivering our vision. These are:

* Research Orientation  * Valuing Our Users  * Quality Control  * Innovation....

LIST OF JOURNALS:

- IOSR Journal of Computer Engineering (IOSR-JCE)
- IOSR Journal of Electrical and Electronics Engineering (IOSR-JEEE)
- IOSR Journal of Mechanical and Civil Engineering (IOSR-JMCE)
- IOSR Journal of Electronics and Communication Engineering (IOSR-JECE)
- IOSR Journal of VLSI and Signal Processing (IOSR-JVSP)
- IOSR Journal of Environmental Science, Toxicology and Food Technology (IOSR-JESTFT)
- IOSR Journal of Humanities and Social Science (IOSR-JHSS)
- IOSR Journal of Pharmacy and Biological Science (IOSR-JPBS)
- IOSR Journal of Business and Management (IOSR-JBM)
- IOSR Journal of Dental and Medical Sciences (IOSR-JDMSS)
- IOSR Journal of Agriculture and Veterinary Science (IOSR-JAVS)
- IOSR Journal of Applied Physics (IOSR-JAP)
- IOSR Journal of Applied Chemistry (IOSR-JAC)
- IOSR Journal of Mathematics (IOSR-JM)
- IOSR Journal of Research & Method in Education (IOSR-JRME)
- IOSR Journal of Applied Geology and Geophysics (IOSR-JAGG)
- IOSR Journal of Nursing and health Science (IOSR-JNIHS)
- IOSR Journal of Economics and Finance (IOSR-JEF)
- IOSR Journal of Sports and Physical Education (IOSR-JSPE)
- IOSR Journal of Polymer and Textile Engineering (IOSR-JPTE)
- IOSR Journal of Mobile Computing & Application (IOSR-JMCA)
Evolution of Rajbanshi Society: A Historical Assessment

Paulami Bhawal, Research scholar, NBU

Abstract: Rajbanshis, an indigenous community of northern portion West Bengal, in the past they were the majority people of North Bengal, particularly in the districts of Jalpaiguri, Ranagur, Dinajpur and the plain areas of Darjeeling district and the Cooch Behar state. Other than North Bengal, Rajbanshis had been living in the other parts of Bengal and Assam. There are many debates on the origin and ethnic identity of the Rajbanshis. In spite of that it is agreed by most of the scholars and historians that the Rajbanshis originated from Koch, a tribal community belonged to Indo-Mongoloid race. Since the colonial period huge number of people of different castes, classes and religions immigrated in this region, particularly in the post colonial period more uncountable people migrated from East Bengal, as a result they became minority in North Bengal and became helpless losing their lands and property. Now-a-days they have faced different types of crises and problems.

Keywords: Koch, Indigenous People, panichitsa, Non-Aryan, Kshatriya Identity etc.

At the outset, it can be said that many writings, articles and books have been published on the different issues and aspects of the Rajbanshi people both in the educational and non-educational institutions. Besides these, many articles, write-ups and books are being published by the initiative of different authors individually or jointly out of any institution. In the University level some research works including Ph. D and M. Phil are also being done. In spite of that there are many undiscovered and unknown aspects of the Rajbanshis which has not been explored by the researchers and authors till now, in this context it can be said that more research works are expected on the various issues and aspects of the Rajbanshis; it is also true that there are many issues on the Rajbanshis which is debatable and no unanimous decision can be taken.

The Rajbanshis were the indigenous people of the greater part of North Bengal and lower Assam in the pre-colonial and colonial period. The Rajbanshis were the majority people of North Bengal, particularly in the districts of Jalpaiguri, Ranagur, Dinajpur and the plain areas of Darjeeling district and the Cooch Behar state. Other than North Bengal, Rajbanshis had been living in the other parts of Bengal and Assam. According to Swaraj Basu, "The Rajbanshis constituted the most predominant section of the local Hindu population in the northern districts of Bengal. Numerically they were the third largest Hindu caste in Bengal as a whole. The origin of this caste is shrouded in mystery & the basic debate is around the question of their association with the Koches. Whatever might have been their actual origin; there is no dispute about the fact that the Rajbanshis were the early settlers in North Bengal. They were a socially homogeneous community, in the sense that there was no sub-caste among them. Dr. Charu Chandra sanjwal stated, "The above observations point to the fact that the Koches are non-Aryan in origin. Some of them adopted Hinduism and became Rajbanshis. These Rajbanshis later on claimed to be Kshatriyas. According to Swaraj Basu, "The local situation also provided a sufficient ground for the Rajbanshis' assertion of a Kshatriya identity and their endeavour to build up caste solidarity."

There are many debates among the origin or ethnological identity of the Rajbanshis. The main debate was whether Rajbanshis were originated from Mongoloid race or Aryan race. This debate was initiated from the starting of the census work from 1870 onwards by the British-India Government. In the census report Government has shown the Rajbanshis and the Koches in the same group. Here, one point should be mentioned that the Koches were originated from the Indo-Mongoloid race and they were treated as tribal community. In accordance with the Aryan culture, the non-Aryan people treated as 'Dasa', 'Dasyu', 'Kirata', and 'Nisada' which means the lower graded people in the society. The non-Aryan people had no prestigious or honourable position in the eyes of upper strata of the society of so called traditional Hindus or Aryan people.

So, when Rajbanshis were shown as a non-Aryan people that were Koches, they protested against the census report. This protest turned into a social movement called "Kshatriya Movement". They demanded that Koches and Rajbanshis were not originated in the same human race. Koches were the tribal people and the Rajbanshi originated from Aryan race. According to the social status of the Aryan, Rajbanshis held the 24th position that was 'Kshatriyas' after the Brahmans. They gave the description from different sources of the Hindu Shastras or mythologies that after defeating in the battle to the Poshurama they came in the Ramapath that was the place beside the Trishrata or Jalpah, settled there and they were called "Brahyo Kshatriyas". This Kshatria movement get a new movement under the leadership of Thakur Panchanan Banar who led the movement throughout the North Bengal and Assam. Ultimately their demand became success and in the census report of 1911 Rajbanshis and Koches were shown separately. In spite of that debate it is not proved.
anthropologically that the Rajbanshis were originated from the Aryan race because their physical structur or biological features of their bodies are assimilated with the Mongolian stock of people. Naturally, almost all the historians and scholars and the British officials showed that the Rajbanshis originated from the Mongoloid race. Swaraj Basu pointed out "... In case of the Rajbanshi caste movement, we find that one of the main thrusts of their movement was to distance themselves from the Koch and to establish their superior social rank." He also added that when the Rabhas in north Bengal tried to move upward in social hierarchy the Rajbanshis leaders did not support their movement." Sunder showed in his report, "The Rajbanshis or Koches predominate in the Daars. The last census returns show their number as 123,439. They are now recognized as a distinct caste of Hindus, but generally the Rajbanshis of the Daars is a Hindu when suits him to be one and a Mech when he obtains pork and wishes to eat it." Hunter also showed in his reports that the Koches and the Rajbanshis were the same communities. He wrote, "The Koches, or the Rajbanshis as they are now called, may be briefly mentioned among the semi-aboriginal tribes, although they are now recognized as a distinct caste of Hindus. The Koch race first came prominently into notice about the close of the fifteenth or the beginning of the sixteenth century, when Hajo established the Koch Kingdom upon the downfall of the more ancient Hindu Kingdom of Kamrup." It is stated that among the Koches who were converted into Hindu religion called the Rajbanshis and who were converted into Islam called Muslim or Mahameddan. Hunter here pointed out that the name of Koch was abandoned by the converts who assumed that of Rajbanshi literally of the Royal Kindred. The Koch or the Rajbanshis form by far the majority of the Hindu population of Jalpaiguri district. Whatever the identity of the Rajbanshis they were the people like semi- tribes, simple in habit, Swaraj Basu again writes."As they were guided by the traditional Brahmanical cultural values, the Rajbanshis, with a tradition and culture of their own, failed to get a respectable position in the status estimation of these immigrant upper caste gentry." It is true that the people of higher caste Hindus coming from East Bengal and South Bengal treated the Rajbanshis as inferior caste, many times called them 'Baree' or 'Banku'. On the contrary the Rajbanshi people called the Bengali people coming from East Bengal or South Bengal as 'Bhatia'. They were mainly habituated with agrarian cultivation. Almost all the people of Rajbanshis were uneducated in the colonial period. They would live in the villages. Their house was made mainly with the Bamboos and thatch and the economically solvent jorjars made their house with tin and wood. Generally in the house of the Rajbanshis four huts were seen. Sunder stated in his report, "Among the Rajbanshis as well as Mahameddan there four huts in every homestead. These face North, South, East and West. Sometimes an extra but called Darighar is also built and is used by friends who may be staying for a night so. In building a homestead cars is taken to have it bounded as follows whenever possible."

North------------- Betel nut trees
South --------------- compound
East --------------- Water
West ---------------- Bamboo

In making the homestead of the Rajbanshis a proverb is prevailing in the Rajbanshi society which is followed by the Rajbanshis people at the time of making their house like this –

Uttare gya,
Dokshine Dhua,
Purbe Hans,
Pashime Bans.

'Uttare gya' means in the north of the homestead there would be a betel nut garden, 'Dokshine dhua' means in the south of the homestead there would be blank field or farm house that means no trees would remain in the south. 'Purbe Hans' means in the east portion of the house there would be a pond and in the pond ducks would swim, 'Pashime Bans' means in the western portion of the house a garden of Bamboos would remain.

I. Food habit

As the Rajbanshis people became Hindus, so they eat everything in accordance with the Hindu religion, but some special food or items are eaten by the Rajbanshis of which 'Chheka Shak' is one of the delicious food of the Rajbanshis which is cooked by different types of vegetables specially mixing with one kind of soda. Another delicious vegetable of the Rajbanshis is 'Lapha Shak'. Another delicious food is eaten by the Rajbanshis locally known as Sukka and Sidal. Sukka means dry fishes and sidal is made by crushing of small dry fishes, spices, turmeric and chilly, all these are crushed in a husk locally called chhurn and Gain 'Pelia', one kind of delicious vegetable item to the Rajbanshis is one kind of traditional food which is mainly cooked by vegetables specially 'Lapha shak'. Dai and Chira is favourite to the Rajbanshi people. Rajbanshis like to eat very much pan and supari locally known 'Gu paan', 'gu' means raw betel nut. They honoured their guest by offering gaa pan at the initial stage of receiving. Many of them always keep this gaa pan in their pocket or small container, and gradually they eat this after some duration.

DOI: 10.9790/0837-201015661 www.userejournals.org 57 | Page
Evolution of Rajbanshi Society: A Historical Assessment

Later on, after huge number of people migrated in North Bengal, many indigenous foods were taken as the food of the migrated people, on the other hand the indigenous people were habituated with the food habit of the migrated people. Not only that, the indigenous people accepted the process of cooking and spices from the migrated people. Beside these, after independence and partition, the spread of education accelerated, many school, colleges, institution were established, as a result of which many indigenous people came under the education. They became educated and many of them got services, the number of employee increased day after day. These educated people went out of the house, settled into different places, started to live different places of the country, as a result of which they gradually became habituated with the food habit of multi- characterized dishes. The food habit of the educated people automatically influenced the other people of the villages. For example many people of Rajbanshi Community used burning fishes as their food, but the new generation people including educated people do not use various types of spices, simply they used turmeric, cumin, coriander etc. dusting in the traditional hauking machine, now a days they use various types of spices purchasing from market. In this regard Sitangshu Prosad chalkabori stated, "Relating food habit they also habituated with modern food habit at present, particularly, the educated Rajbanshis and the Rajbanshis of urban areas use modern food instead of taking their traditional food habit such as pelka, chheka, sidal-suki."

It is found in the field survey that all most all of the indigenous people use modern type’s food accordingly the global culture of food habit. Jagat Singh Barman stated that they eat everything in accordance with the Hindu food habit. Both of the veg and non- veg they take as their food which are available in the market and the purchased accordingly their financial capacity. They sometimes eat their traditional food like pelka, slutka sidal, chheka etc. But usually they use all the food which is eaten by other Bengali people. There are no vast differences between our food habit and the food habit of other Bengali people. Kaistul Barman of the same village told that they rarely use traditional food, generally they are habituated with the food habit like the other Bengali people. He also added that their children preferred the modern food than the traditional food. I have also collect informations from many educated Rajbanshis who serve in various departments and dwelled in the town and my colleagues of Rajbanshi community talking with them directly where no differences have been found in their food habit between the Rajbanshis and other Bengali people.

II. Dress

Upendra Nath Barman stated, "It is known that the women of Rajbanshi community wore a dress called Buki (Bukali) and it was prevailing since ancient time. Apart from this the two parts of dress named Niyaa and Mekhala were used by the women. It should be mentioned here that the men of poor family weared small dhothi from the upper side of knee and the very poor men weared a piece of cloth called 'Negiti'. At the time of continuing social reforms movement Thakur Panchanan Barma propagated to wear dhothi in stead of 'Negiti' and saris of women in stead of 'Buki'." Advance group among the Rajbanshis whom we may refer to in the absence of a better term as the 'Rajbanshi' elites', followed the upper caste Hindus of the region in dress, lifestyle, marriage customs, and religious practices. According to C.C. Sanoyal, "Discarding the it traditional clothes, both men and women dressed in the fashion of the upper castes in society."

All the indigenous people started slowly to wear modern dress like other people of main stream. The young generation both male and female is habituated with the modern dress they started to wear pant, shirt, shoe, etc. The girls and female wear churidar or salwar kamij, frock, sarees etc, not only that, presently, the female also wear the dress of the male such as pant, shirt etc. The old men wear Dhothi, Punjabi also pant, shirts etc. Now a day’s almost all the indigenous people have been wearing modern dress, no differences are followed in terms of dresses between the indigenous people and the immigrated people. For the emergence of global culture no man can deny to accept the global culture. So, now a day’s no man can be identified of which community they belong with their dresses because of the abolishment of traditional dresses except few instances and increasing the modern dress-habit.

III. Marriage

As the Rajbanshis belonged to Hindu community, so the marriage ceremony is performed according to the Hindu religion or Brahmanical references. Despite of that many traditional customs or rituals were to be followed at the time of marriage. A middle man locally known as ‘ghatak’ or ‘ghakti’ communicated between the guardians of bride and bride- grooms and information is sent time to time to both of the parties. If both sides are satisfied and chosen each other the wedding is confirmed and fixed up the date of marriage.

The marriage ceremony of the Rajbanshis of the district is completed by three stages, namely pan tola, adhibas and marriage. The guests of bride are gone to the house of bride groom and the new clothes and ornaments are weared to the bride groom and blessed her. This occasion is called Pan Tola. In the second stage the following occasion are performed — turmeric was touched to the body of the bride groom called adhibas.
and in the occasion called Naua kamani was performed. Then the Hargouri puja, Nandi kuhl shradihya and the last stage the main marriage ceremony is performed. Among the local customs or rituals of the marriage ceremony among the Rajbanshis a ‘Mitra’ or friend is to be selected at the time of marriage who remain as a friend or a relative of the bride in the whole life. Another custom is seen, a person who dropped water in the head of the bride and bride- groom at the time of marriage and related with them as their parents called ‘Pani chhita Baap’ and ‘Pani chhita Ma’. They are also related with the bride And bride- groom in the whole life as their parents. Another custom in the marriage of the Rajbanshis which is not seen in the marriage of Aryan culture is that Mitra played a vital role in the whole marriage ceremony. Polygamy was seen in the society of the Rajbanshi meaning of which that a Rajbansh man could marry more than one. Widow Remarriage was also a common practice in the society of the Rajbanshis in the pre-colonial and colonial period where in the society of higher caste widow remarriage was a hard task. In this point of view Rajbanshis were more liberal than the higher caste people.

IV. Worship, Customs and Festivals

At present the Rajbanshis are Hindus. But originally they were Koches, an Indo- Mongoloid tribes believing in tribal culture, though it is debatable. It is assumed by most of the historians and social scientist that the Rajbanshis were converted to Hinduism from Koches. There were many God, Goddess and Deities who were worshiped by the Rajbansh. It should be mentioned here that there were many non- Aryan God and Goddess worshiped by the Rajbanshi as they were basically non- Aryan. After converted into Hinduism they worshiped Hindu God and Goddess. Among the non- Aryan deities there were Bisto Thakur, he was worshiped by the name of Jitthakur also. This worship was held in the month of Bhdr. He is a deity of water. The Brabma thakur is a deity of Agni or fire. Besides, there were Pahan thakur or deity of air, Basunati thakur, Bisahari thakuran, Mahakal thakur, the oldest Deity, Gramthakur, Shib thakur, or Maheshwar, Lakshmi thakuran, Dharmathakur etc. The worship of Banadurga is held in every year at the time of ekadashi of Durga worship at Bhundam in the village of Barnsh near Maynagar. This worship is performed in accordance with the Rajbanshi Mythology. The Devis is immorated at the midnight of ekadashi according to the Vedic literature. There was a custom to sacrifice of goat and dove to the Goddess. The worship of Ban Durgar is held at the time of Ekadashi in every year at the Barnsh village of Maynagar in accordance with the Rajbanshi customs.

Harhar Adhikar informed me, ‘Late Hariprosad Basuniya was a zamindar. He introduced Kalipuja at first. The worship of Kali of the house of Hariprosad Basuniya was known as ‘Hariprosad Basuniya Barr Puja’ and later on it was known as ‘Kai Singh Basuniya Barr Kalipuja’. According to him, ‘The Basuniyas then had a total land of (80) eighty’ Hals (an unit of 120 bighan), Comprising of the jots of Betgara, Khagrachari, Naktalwari (near Baksiranga) and Dindia Simla (near Nathula). It is also learnt that the former title of the Basuniyas was ‘Daus’. They came from the Gairbandha thana of Rangpur District (Now in Bangladesh). The title Basuniya’ was probably given by the British. The marriage of Rajbanshi society was like a social festival. Different types of customs and usages were performed at the time of marriage which were enjoyed by the relatives, invitees and the villagers.

Kanagata—This worship Kanagata is started from the previous Purinama. In this worship their forefathers are respected by sacrificing water oblation to their forefather by the Brahmana or Adhikary. Nabanna—This worship is observed at the time of collecting new crops. There is a custom prevailing among many of the Bengali Hindu families that they worship ‘Nabanna’ before eating new crops. Binapani Adhikari pointed out, ’Bashkshi puza or worship is performed in the month of Basshakha (April-May) Bananas, Kandali etc. different types of fruits and flowers are given in this worship. Out of these, dahi (cud) and chira are also given. Nor Brahmana or priest is necessary to perform this worship; rather the priest of Rajbanshi community called Adhikary performed this worship. Kali/Bishahari worship is performed by local priest known as Maraya or Ojha. It is significant that no Sanskrit mantra is uttered in this worship, rather the mantras are pronounced in local dialect or Rajbanshi language. This puza is sacrificed by the left hand. Before performing the marriage ceremony the worship of Kalapura, placed the east corner of the house is given and thereafter the worship of Bishahari is given. Gojubhonna—This worship is observed before growing plants of paddy in the land. At first land is prepared for growing plants of paddy, thereafter a worship called gojubhonna is performed in the lands. Few plants of paddy is poured these worships performed to their deity with rice, banana and other fruits. Masdel (one kind of beans), black amruk and raw milk is given to the worship. Jatrapua—This worship is performed in the day of Nabami of the month of Asvina(October) by giving sugarcanes, lemon and other fruits and the next day, in the day of Vijaya Dasaami the Jatrapua is observed in the house. In this worship the essential instruments of the house including books have been worshiped. Laxmi puja—Laxmi puja is popular festivals of the Hindu Bengali the Goddess mother Laxmi is observed. Like other Hindu Bengali people in the house of Rajbanshi community mother Laxmi is observed. The Rajbanshis worship with daia, chira, banana and other fruits. The trees of paddy is cut at the bottom, covered with banana leaves and kept in the kitchen. Different kinds of religious occasions are seen to be performed in the Rajbanshi society through the ancient period when rain is not seen in the rainy season as a result of which agricultural cultivation is affected. One of these festivals is 'Hemter Bijo' (marriage of frog). This occasion is performed by women. A proverb is prevailing in the society of North Bengal that when frogs croak rain is falling. So for falling of rain Rajbanshi women perform the occasion of frog's marriage. Another occasion was held in the Rajbanshi society though it is not seen in the present day society that was 'Hadam Khela'. In this occasion women would go house to house in the dark of night being naked unfolding hair warming the male members of the house either they would leave the house or they would remain in the room shutting the door. The naked women in such a way entered the house and dance together in the curtiard and sang songs for falling rain. According to W.W.Hunter, 'A singular relic of old superstition is the worship of the God Hadum Dee'. The women of a village assemble together in some distant and solitary place, no male being allowed to be present at the rites which is always performed at night, a plantain or young bamboo is stuck in the ground, and the women throwing off their garments, dance round the mystic tree, singing old songs and charms. The rite is more especially performed when there is no rain and the crops are suffering from drought. As the Rajbanshis were converted into Hindus which is referred earlier, they perform all the worship, festivals, occasions in accordance with the Hindu customs and mythology. But many of the customs, festivals and ways are still found which is out of the Aryan culture. These cultures have been going on through the ancient period to the present day.

V. Language

George Abraham Groenland published his research report in “Linguistic Survey of India” in 1927 where he mentioned, “when we cross the river (Brahmaputra) coming from Dacca, we meet a well marked form of speech in Rangpur and the districts to its north and east. It is called Rajbansi and while undoubtedly belonging to the eastern branch has still points of difference which lead us to class it as a separate dialect.” He also wrote “The dialect is usually known as Rajbansi, from the tribe of that name already alluded to. It is also frequently called Rangpuri from one of the districts in which it is spoken. In the Darjeeling Terai the dialect is influenced by the neighbouring Northern Bengalis and has a special name, as a sub-dialect viz Bahe.”

The Rajbanshi languages a dialect of main Bengali language. Provat Ranjan Sarkar stated the language of Rajbansis of North Bengal as ‘Rangpur Bangla’. Upendarath Barman stated that the Rajbanshi language is a pure Aryan language which was supported by different scholars like Hodson etc. Dr. Charu chandrayal wrote, “The Rajbansis speak Bengali but it is a local dialect sometimes widely away from standard Bengali.”

VI. Amusements

There are many dramas, songs, palatiya songs which were written and performed by the Rajbanshi language. The famous song of the Rajbanshi as well as of the indigenous Muslims of North Bengal and lower Assam is ‘Bhowaitya’ which is written and sung in Rajbanshi language. The ‘Bhowoityiya’ songs are the themes of every aspect of the lives and hearts of Rajbanshi people. This song is divided into two categories namely ‘Chatka’ and ‘Dariya’. These songs are composed on the basis of every aspect of the society, economy, culture, custom, religion, love, joy and pain taking place in everyday life of the Rajbanshis. Other famous songs of the Rajbanshis are ‘Doradaradga Gaan’ and ‘Kushan Gaan’. These songs are performed in different villages of North Bengal and lower Assam; these are performed particularly in the season of different occasions and festivals. These songs are composed on the basis of different Hindu Sstras such as Ramayana, Mahabharata and Purana. In the song, different ‘Pal’ or Play is performed on the basis of various aspects of the society, economy, religion and politics etc. In these songs the ‘Gidal’ plays the significant role. Beside the ‘Gidal’, the ‘Dohari’ and ‘Chhoikris’ sing and dance jointly. The Gidal sings first, Dohari and Chhoikris follow the song, after singing the Gidal explain the meaning of the song. The Dohari also explain it. Now-a-days, these songs and plays are not seen sufficiently to perform. The people present generation are interested to modern songs, Jatras, theaters and cinemas. In Dinajpur district one of the ancient dramas ‘Monai Yatra’. The original writer of Monai yatra was Telenga Fakir, inhabitant of another writer was Najir Mahmud Sarkar. In Malda, Dinajpur, Bagura, Murshidabad district one kind of drama named Alkap was performed where evolved the various incidents of society and the story of the poor and distressed people. Another type of drama of Malda and Dinajpur district was Gambhra remaining the story of various people and comedy. Rangpur Bartabohbo Patrika introduced a valuable literature and culture. Many informations and writings were published in this Patrika. It was patronized by the zamindar of Kunder of Rangpur district.

In the post colonial period for entering the modern culture indigenous people gradually accepted it. They accepted Baul, Bhatiai, Rahendra Sangit, Nazrul git, adhunik songs etc. Not only that now a days the young generation people like Hindi songs, Adhanik songs, Hindi cinema instead of their traditional culture. It should be mentioned here that in spite of all these changes many indigenous people still do not forget their traditional culture. They observed and preserved their traditional culture as their wealth and heritage.

VII. Conclusion

Many changes have been taken place in the Rajbanshi society balancing with the multi-dimensional culture of the world. It is true that a large number of people of Rajbanshi community have taken education and become educated and serving in different places of the country positively. But, it is also true that many of the Rajbanshi people having no way for their livelihood or source of income they have been working as agricultural labourer, industrial labourer, house servant in the town. Practically, it is the present scenario of the town of North Bengal, particularly of the northern portion of North Bengal that most of the labourers including men and women working on the road, house servants, helper of mason are Rajbanshis. As a result of these incidents, many discontent and grievances have been accumulated in the mind of Rajbanshi people.

Notes and References

[2] Dr. C.C. Anand, the Rajbansh of North Bengal, 1910-1947, New Delhi
[3] Swamji Baru, op cit, p. 52
[4] Ibid, p. 21
[5] Ibid, p. 21
[8] Ibid, 235
[9] Swamji Baru, op cit, p. 62
[13] The author has noticed the process of making Sukta, Salad, Chhokha Shank in the house of Rajbanshi people of many villages and the author personally tested it.
[15] Interview with Jagat Singh Hurman, 64 years, Takomrohi, Roshka Hill, Couch Behar
[16] Interview with Karthika Hurman, 65 years, Takomrohi, P.O. Roshka Hill, Dist. Couch Behar
[18] Interview with Bimal Roy, teacher, Gourapara High School, Harubari, Jalpaiguri
[22] Ibid.
[23] 25. Interview with Harer Adhikary, 65, SIO Munir Mohan Adhikary, Village Bolburi, Mymensing, Jalpaiguri
[24] Ibid.
[25] Ibid.
[26] Interview, Himapani Adhikari, 55, Cto Harer Adhikari, Domobari, Bolpur, Mymensing, Jalpaiguri, dated 17.10.13
[27] Ibid.
[28] Ibid.
[31] Ibid, p.163
[32] Ibid.
[33] Interview with Bimal Roy, op. cit.
[34] Purnai Ranjan Sarkar, Bangla O Bangali., 1988, p. 89
[36] C.C. Saxena, the Rajbanshi of North Bengal
[37] Interview with Bimal Roy, op. cit.
[38] Motahar Hossein Soli, Bangla Sahityar Rangpurier Abidan, Bangla academia Dhaka, p. 54

DOI: 10.9790/0837-201015661  www.sourjournals.org  61 | Page