ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The present study focuses on setting up a proper model for managing different aspects of Credit risks in commercial banks. It would not have been possible for the scholar to complete this study without the able guidance and support of Dr. R.K. PURCHURE, University Pune. I wish to thank him for his valuable suggestions, constant encouragement and the unfailing patience with which I was helped in carrying out the structure of model, preparing and writing major research components, and finally in reviewing my drafts for several times. Both of us were keenly interested in the subject.

It is my privilege to extend my sincere appreciation to Dr. H.A. GHANBARI, from Department of Economics, University of Shahid Beheshti of Iran, who has been the source of inspiration for my research work. His vast experience in research has helped me in fulfilling the main model of this research work.

My sincere thanks to both Mr. JAVAHERY and Miss. SHIRZADI for giving their valuable time for discussion and providing support during the research period.

I take this opportunity to thank Mr. RASEKH for his helps in editing the drafts and final version of this research work.

Last but not least, my special thanks to my father, mother and wife and my beloved son DANIAL who have been the source of inspiration and encouragement in all my achievements.
