Acknowledgements

Writing this thesis has been a journey to many known and unknown places and to different memories and imaginative geographies. All along the way I was fortunate to have the wonderful company of many of my teachers, fellow PhD students, friends, family and well-wishers. The pursuit of the ideas in this work owes a great deal to my supervisor Prof. B.S. Butola. His persistent guidance, encouragement and gracious generosity enabled me to conceptualize and complete this thesis. Special thanks to the PhD Committee members for their critical observations and incisive comments on my work in every stage.

Prof. Ian J Barrow, Middlebury College, Vermont was kind enough to send me an out-of-print copy of his book. My special gratitude to all the faculty members of North-east Hill Areas University, Shillong; Manipur University, Canchipur, Imphal; and Nagaland University, Lumami who took keen interest in my work, responding to my queries and providing guidance. To mention a few Prof. M.C. Arun, Prof. Manorama Sharma, Prof. Apurba Baruah, Prof. David Symlieh, Prof. A.K. Nongkynrih, Prof. L.S. Gassah, Prof. V.K Venuh, Dr. Sylvanus Lamare who were kind enough to share their critical views and observations beside coming forward to help me during my fieldwork. My greatest debt to friends without whose intervention the fieldwork for this thesis could not have been possible -Monalisa, Leiklai, Akhun, Alfred, Hukato, Daniel, Lambok, Bimol and Sanbor.

I am deeply indebted to my parents and family members who inspired me providing constant encouragement and support through out my PhD work. I cannot forget Maina -my little sister -the ‘Alice in Wonderland’ who often embalmed with her brotherly love in most critical moments providing me the strength to strive ahead. My Dada and Bhabi -the towering figures in my life who stood by me like previous occasions were always prompt in letting a helping hand whenever
I needed anything. I am short of words for the contribution of Amma and Abba without whom I would not have seen this day. Their constant encouragement, love and affection towards me have been a perennial source to overcome every hurdles in my life.

My special thanks to my friends -Ashutosh, Sandeep, Zakaria, Pradip, Joseph and Om who kept me in good humour and company sharing many edifying and enthralling conversations. Special thanks to all the members of Arravali Blues for sharing their musical moments with me which will always be vivid in my memory.

I would like to thank the Indian Council for Social Science and Research and University Grants Commission for financially supporting me during the course of my PhD work.

Finally, in the whole process of writing my thesis many are involved, only few can be explicitly acknowledgement, but all can be thanked.

(Rafiul Ahmed)

July, 2009