LIST OF FIGURES

1) Figure 1.1.2 (a): Projected energy mix in India by 2030 (%)
2) Figure 1.1.2 (b): India’s sector wise gas consumption (%)
3) Figure 1.1.3 (d) (i): Predicted energy consumption worldwide vis-a-vis emerging economies like India & China
4) Figure 1.1.4 (a) (i): Current Gas Demand & Domestic Supply Scenario
5) Figure 1.2.1 (a): Various Business verticals of GAIL
6) Figure 1.2.1 (a): Various Business verticals of GAIL
7) Figure 2.2 (a): Evolution and Development of HRM in India
8) Figure 2.5 (b) (i): Organizational capabilities
9) Figure 2.5 (b) (1) (i): The Harvard Model
10) Figure 2.5 (b) (2) (D) (i): The Guest Model
11) Figure 2.5 (b) (3) (i): The Matching Model of HRM
12) Figure 2.7 (a) (i): Determinants of horizontal fit and vertical fit
13) Figure 2.7 (a) (ii): HR Alignment Analysis
14) Figure 3.3 (a): Philosophical Assumptions along with implications for this research study
15) Figure 3.4 (a): Comparison between Scientific Paradigms
16) Figure 3.5 (a): Three different research approaches (Spens & Kovács, 2006)
17) Figure 3.6 (a): Characteristics of Qualitative Research Methods
18) Figure 3.6 (b): Comparison of qualitative and quantitative elements in design
19) Figure 3.8: Summary of Research Design & Methodology
20) Figure 3.9: Case Study Design
21) Figure 3.10: Main steps in data collection
22) Figure 3.11.1: Examples of Codes
23) Figure 3.11.2: Codes, Categories, and Concepts
24) Figure 3.11.3: Categorization and linking of codes, categories & concepts
25) Figure 3.11.4: Casual relationships identified from interview statements
26) Figure 3.11.5: Relationships between concepts/categories inherited from codes
27) Figure 4.1.1: GAIL’s Business Portfolio
28) Figure 4.1.2: Organisation Chart for HR Team of large gas utility company
29) Figure 4.3: List of interviewees Case study