ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I would first like to sincerely thank my research guide Dr. Shailaja Shastri, from psychology department, at the Jain University. The door to her department was always open to me whenever I ran into trouble or had a doubt, question or concern about my research. She consistently encouraged me, and allowed this research to be my own work, steering me in the right direction whenever needed. Her vast experience and abundant knowledge in the area of research gave me the critical insights whenever needed. I would also want to thank her from the bottom of my heart for going out of the way in helping me conduct workshops for the parents as a part of my commitment to them. I would not have been successful in the attempt of conducting this research without her guidance, advice and motivation.

I also want to thank the President of Jain University Shri. Chenraj Jain, Vice Chancellor, Dr. Sunder Rajan, and Pro-Vice Chancellor, Dr. Sandeep Shastri for providing me an opportunity to be a part of Jain University and trusting my abilities and competence.

Parents, who were the participants and respondents, were the lifeline of this study. They took out their valuable time on weekends to meet the researcher and give their responses. I would like to thank all the respondents (parents) for their participation, support and cooperation, without which my research would not have been successful. Their trust in the whole process and their honest responses were at the heart of this research process.

I would also want to thank all the school management, principals, and teachers, for their wholehearted support for the study. The permissions granted by them to conduct the research in their schools was the first stepping stone of success for this research. The time the teachers took out in spite of their hectic schedules to help select samples was commendable. The support of schools and teachers is enormous, without which the research would have got stagnated.

I sincerely want to thank some of my friends, who took out their valuable time to accompany me on the weekends to meet the respondents and gave me support. I take this opportunity to extend and express my love and warm feelings towards them.

I thank my statistician Dr. Mariamma, HOD of NIMHANS statistics department, for helping me with my statistical analysis, and also her student Mr. Ravi who did the statistical analysis of my data for their support and timely help. Here, I would also want to thank one of my friends, Amarnath who supported me by assisting me in the data entry process of the responses received into my master sheet. He sincerely gave his time and effort in this phase and extended his support to me.

I would also like to extend my heartfelt regards and gratitude to the librarian in NIMHANS, who would always smilingly help me find my journals and books.

Last but not the least, I would like to thank my family members: my parents, who encouraged me and supported me despite being a little anxious about the commitment that was required for the whole process. They were my backbone during this research journey. My children, Anjali and Arjun, were ever supportive and cooperative through this hectic period of my life. They silently encouraged me by helping me their own small ways and giving me the space that I needed at many points of time in this period. My husband Murli, never hesitated to provide help whenever asked. His contribution in compiling my data and results has been very valuable. Also, in many ways compensated my non-availability and absence at home during this period.

I would not be doing justice if I would not thank my brother Madan and sister-in-law, Roopa, who worked extensively in helping me format my whole document. Roopa, in spite of her work and busy schedule made time to organize the whole document which has given it the present look and feel. I am grateful to her for her involvement and interest she has shown in my work.

I take this opportunity to thank each of them for their contribution and encouragement in my accomplishment. Thank you all once again.

Mala Murlidhar
