In the process of working out the ideas contained in this thesis I have been fortunate in having stimulating discussions with a number of individuals. First and foremost are my supervisors, viz., Professor Chiranjib Sen and Professor K.K. Subrahmanian. Both of them have been extremely kind and generous with their time which gave me enough flexibility. I am grateful to them for their painstaking reading of the successive drafts and for such suggestions which might have improved my arguments.

In the early part of working on this thesis I got an opportunity to work on an IDBI sponsored project on the Tyre industry, at the Centre, as a project associate. This helped me to discuss the initial stages of my ideas with Dr. Gita Sen and Mr. P.K. Michael Tharakan, who were also associated with the above study. I am extremely obliged to them for their various comments and helpful suggestions.

One of my colleagues at IPE, R. Nagaraj and Professor N. Krishnaji were extremely kind enough to read through certain specific parts. Most obliged to them for their comments. Professor Amiya Kumar Bagchi, was kind enough to go through a draft of my Chapter 2 on 'The Framework For Analysis' and suggested some modifications. My sincere thanks to him.

Dr. Y.K. Alagh, the then Chairman of the Bureau of Industrial Costs and Prices (Ministry of Industry, Government of India) took me as a consultant to the Bureau's Study (Phase II) on the industry. This gave me an opportunity to get a more close understanding of the industry. My grateful thanks to him.

I received excellent co-operation from all the tyre companies and the Automotive Tyre Manufacturer's Association during my field work. In fact the field work was vastly facilitated by the letters of introduction given by a friend and well-wisher, Mr. P.K.J. Tharakan of M/s. J. Thomas & Co. Cochin. Not only helped me in my field work but also took a keen interest in the progress of my work. I certainly owe a debt of gratitude to him.

Dr. Garry Pursell (Principal Economist, The World Bank) was quite helpful in clarifying the methodological aspect of computing the various protection measures (used specifically in Chapter 3).

Mr. T.L. Sankar, Director, IPE always provided the gentle nudging to complete the thesis as quickly as possible. I am grateful to him for that.
The successive drafts were very quickly and efficiently typed by J. Nagarajan at IPE and N. Suresh Chandran at CDS. My deepest thanks to them.

My friend Dr. Daniel Sathiaraj and numerous other friends at IPE and at CDS provided the requisite moral encouragement during the course of the study.

However I, alone, am responsible for all the remaining shortcomings.
