ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The journey of life is not a solitary one. There are innumerable individuals who play significant roles in our lives, at varying stages. My Ph.D. project has been a wonderful journey with several companions, whom I would like to acknowledge.

The first and foremost individual that comes to my mind is my guide and mentor, Dr. Vijayalaxmi Aminabhavi. Her commitment and dedication to this research inspired me to do the same. Every meeting with her has been an enriching learning experience. Her uncompromising attention to detail, and patience, have played a pivotal role in this research. She has been a very empathetic listener, guiding me beyond the borders of research! I am indeed blessed to have such a knowledgeable and dedicated research guide.

I appreciate all the effort taken by the administrative staff of the Psychology Department in Karnatak University Dharwad, to ensure that all the necessary paperwork was managed in a timely fashion.

I am thankful to the Library Staff of Karnatak University Dharwad, and Christ University, Bangalore, for facilitating the access to the journals and books which form the cornerstone of any research project.

Data collection was a very smooth process, thanks to the warm cooperation and support of the school principals – Late Shri Nadgouda of Herwadkar School, Ms. Jasmine of St. Mary’s School, and Ms. Mutalik of KLS School.

The research subjects - the enthusiastic adolescents, deserve my utmost gratitude for their interest and sincerity!
The school teachers who helped me maintain discipline during the administration of the tests; the administrative department who coordinated and gave me the information about students’ marks and parental incomes; a heartfelt thanks to each one of them.

I would like to thank my research colleagues, Ms. Mahadevi Wadder and Ms. Anita Bhat, for their invaluable help with the statistical analysis of the data.

My sincere thanks to Ms. Rakhi Pote, my research assistant, who assisted me at every stage of data collection, with efficiency and sincerity.

I express my genuine appreciation for my husband, Raj’s, steadfast support, eagerness to help, and pride in my research work. His expertise in MS Excel has saved me hours of tedious labour!

My daughter, Pallavi, at a very young age, has helped me immensely with data entry, data verification, and filing. I appreciate her help and continual interest in my research work. I would also like to thank my son Jayant for his quiet understanding.

My mother, Mrs. Kumudini Deshpande, and my mother in law Mrs. Kunda Belgaumkar, have encouraged me at every step of this journey; I am eternally grateful to both of them.

Finally, I would like to acknowledge and appreciate those who accompanied, supported, and motivated me on this journey…

Ashwini Belgaumkar
