Acknowledgements

This thesis provided me an opportunity to do continuous research on a single topic over a sustained period of time. It was not possible for me to walk in the complex web of research without the stout supervision of my guide, Prof. (Dr.) Mridul Srivastava. I am deeply indebted to her for giving the mantra of studying basic building blocks of any topic before doing any fruitful research on that topic. This teaching of hers not only inspired this work of mine but will continue to inspire all the future endeavors of my life.

I owe my deepest gratitude to Prof. (Dr.) T. Bhattacharya for his valuable remarks and suggestions. I would like to thank Dr. Vijayalaxmi Sharma and Dr. Sony Kulshrestha for their constant support and encouragement. I am also thankful to the Library Staff of Manipal University Jaipur and NLIU for providing serene environment to study the rich collection of books and journals on the subject of my thesis. To my other colleagues at Manipal University Jaipur, I would like to thank you for your wonderful cooperation as well. It was always helpful to discuss ideas about my research around with you.

Many people helped me in writing the thesis but it would be impossible to name them all. I must record a significant and enduring debt to Prof. (Dr.) U.P Singh, who was not only my supervisor for writing dissertation for completing LL.M at National Law University Bhopal, but he is the one who provided me a deep insight into the complex and contemporary issues of Human Rights law. I would also like to thank my elder brother Manish who made many perceptive and helpful comments on the drafts of the thesis.

My parents and in-laws deserve a particular note of thanks for their wise counsel and kind words have, as always, served me well. My principal acknowledgement must, as always, be to my husband Sarthak, who continues to be unbelievably patient and supportive.
