ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This Ph.D. thesis is the result of a challenging journey, during which many people have given their contribution and support. It is a pleasure to convey my gratitude to all of them in my humble acknowledgment.

First of all, I would like to offer my deepest and sincerest gratitude to my Ph.D. Supervisor, Dr. A. K. Sinha, Professor, Department of Anthropology, Panjab University, Chandigarh, for providing me with the essential guidance, assistance and expertise that I needed during my research work. Dr. Sinha gave me freedom to explore my genius to its depths and at the same time contributed valuable feedback, advice, and encouragement. His advice on both research as well as career building initiatives has been most invaluable. I am humbled by his magnanimity.

I am extremely grateful to Prof. Abhik Ghosh, Chairperson, Department of Anthropology, Panjab University, Chandigarh for providing me the departmental facilities at all points of time during my research work.

I am thankful to the faculty members of the Department of Anthropology, Panjab University, Chandigarh, for the substantial influence their courses have had on my research.

I am thankful to Col. O P Lamba, Chairman, The REEDS, Chandigarh for giving me an opportunity to do internship during the Master degree which embarked me on this journey of discovery among the hand-beaten metal craftsmen of Jandiala Guru. It was our research work for this project that obtained for Jandiala Guru the pride of place as a world heritage site in the Intangible Cultural Heritage list by the UNESCO.

I would like to thank my beloved parents Sheashpal Goyal and Neelam Goyal, most deeply from my heart with love and faith for their constant encouragement and prays throughout my life. This research would not have been possible without their support. They always supported me in whatever decision I took in my life. I am highly indebted to my elder brother Kamal Goyal, who always stood by my side and gave me strength to go ahead in my life and become the person I am today. He infused me with confidence and strength whenever I have faltered or been hesitant.

I take this opportunity to thank my best friend Pooja for accompanying me through the challenges of life. I am greatly indebted to her for her encouragement, moral support and co-operation in every possible way.

I am also grateful to my friends Chandan, Baljeet, Dinesh, Gagandeep, Rupinder Singh, Avanee and Sahil for their spontaneous and constant unstinted support throughout my research work and allied activities in the University. I would also like to thank my friends Abhishek, Aman, Arun, Gian, Gurinder, Mehdi, Monika, Nitin, Nutan, Raman, Ratika, Reza, Rohit, Sandeep, Sapam, Sarbjit, Sidharth, Tejinder and Vijay for their several and diverse suggestions.

Indeed it is to my respondents that I owe the deepest debt of gratitude for their unstinted support, patient hearing and frank and fearless participation in our innumerable discussions held through the din of hammer beating on metal. Their love and support gave me strength to continue my work. I am hopeful that my research work will open doors of resurrection, preservation and propagation of this craft.

I would like to thank the administrative and technical staff in the Department of Anthropology for their facilitation all through my research work.

In the end I humbly submit my efforts at the feet of the Divine Maker who is the greatest Master Crafts person of all.

Sumit Goyal
