ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

At the outset, I record my indebtedness to my research guide Dr. M.L. Sali, who went through the whole draft very minutely and gave extensive and useful suggestions, which provided qualitative richness to the thesis. I must acknowledge, with all my due regards to him that he, very firmly, made me work hard for my research. He proved to be my real ‘guide’ in true academic sense. His inspiration and zeal enabled me to complete the work with éclat. I am indeed indebted to him for life.

I am also acknowledging my gratitude to Dr. A.S. Dalvi, Head, Department of Defence and Strategic studies, Savitribai Phule Pune University, for his advice and Co-operation to complete the work. I appeal to acknowledge my indebtedness to Dr. Shrikant Paranjpe and Dr.V.S. Khare for their helpful suggestions and intensive help. I will be regretful if I wont mention the open hearted cooperation extended by Mrs. Deole (Official Staff Member of DDSS) to complete all official formalities throughout this Ph.D programme.

Several NGOs and Government organisations generously shared their data and their research material, I am extremely grateful to them. I would take this opportunity to thank entire staff of the Jaykar Library, SPPU; NISDA library, SPPU; CIRT library, Pune; Mantralaya Library, Mumbai and MORTH Library, New Delhi, who was kind enough to helped me with the required information, Books, Journals during my library consultation programme. I am especially thankful to Mr. Manoj Kulkami, Senior librarian, Yashada, (Govt.Of Maharashtra.) Pune, for his sincere co-operation. I found him a true librarian in spirit and essence.

This Research study could not have been completed without generous contribution of many individuals and organisation. The thesis benefited greatly from intellectual advice and guidance provided by external field experts. Many individuals are consulted the preparation of the study report provided invaluable advice, information and material during group discussions, questioners and Interview sessions.

I wish also to acknowledge the excellent support that received from Yashada faculties. Col (Retd.) V.N. Supanekar, Director, Center for Disaster Management, Dr. Sumedh Gurjar, Director, Center for Research and Development, Dr. Sunil Dhapte,
Director, Administrative Training Institute. I am indeed humbled by the dedication and intellectual contribution made by them. They have provided consistent support and encouragement. I am also thankful and wish to acknowledge special dept to Col.P.P.Marathe (Retd.), whose constant guidance has shaped the studies and his personal commitment is deeply appreciated.

The report benefited enormously from the advice and contributions towards editing. Computer Technical support and language editing was carried out by my loving sister-Sayali.

A friends group, made up of colleagues, provided extremely useful comments, suggestions and inputs during the writing of the thesis. And to the countless people in communities and neighborhoods around, I Hope I have accurately reflected their concerns and acted on them with sufficient passion.

I am profoundly grateful to my parent whose inspiration has always acted as a catalyst and which has seen me through all my endeavors in my life. All my family members are always committed to their constant moral support and companionship. I grateful to my children, for their understanding and love.

I wish to convey my deep appreciation to all those named and unnamed, who have assisted me directly or indirectly in my completion of this work.

In the end, I pay homage and offer my gratitude to my late husband-Prashant, who has unstintingly contributed help in many road accidents. Some of these incidences started influencing me long ago to work on this issue. He has lost his life in road accident and still I am missing his voice dearly. I am speechless towards him who backed me in my development while I was in exile; know that I lived on the memory of that support for many dark years. This work is dedicated to the memories of my late husband and to many other accident victims and their families.
