ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The completion of this thesis would not have been possible without the unstinting support of teachers, institutions, friends and family during the last three years.

My supervisor, Neeladri Bhattacharya, has taken a keen interest in the progress of this work and been a source of constant support at times when the going got tough. He has improved the quality of this work considerably with his patience and tolerance. Shereen Ratnagar has been a great source of encouragement for my work ever since my M.A. days. Discussions with her made me aware of some aspects of this topic which I would have otherwise ignored. I have also benefitted from the generosity of Ramchandra Guha who gave me a free access to his books and information about sources. Though discussions with many people helped in framing the arguments of this thesis, I would particularly like to thank Bela Malik and Rahul Ghai. Intense discussions with them have helped to frame many of these ideas. Bela's knowledge of Assam was particularly helpful in this respect.

The Indian Council of Historical Research has funded a part of this research. The staff of various archives and libraries - National Archives and Nehru Memorial Library in Delhi, Madhya Pradesh Secretariat Record Room, Bhopal; Madhya Pradesh Central Record Room, Nagpur; Mandla, Jagdalpur, Balaghat and Chhindwara District record rooms, Varanasi Memorial Library, Jabalpur; Methodist Archives, Bombay - has been most helpful in providing access to records and sources. In particular I would like to thank Naiduji at Nagpur, J.N Dixit in Mandla and Mr Hamilton in Jabalpur.

The support and affection of many friends has sustained me during this period. I have benefitted from the hospitality of the Bhagwagar's in Nagpur and the Chari's in Bhopal. Joya and Prakash have always provided a supportive and conducive environment to study in during my visits to Delhi. Friends like Bela, Alka, Rahul, Rohan, Niti, Madhulika and Thomas have always found the time to listen to my woes and make me 'take a break' when they thought I was working too hard.

The production of this thesis would not have been possible without the help of Sunanda and Anurag Gitai in Jaipur and Mona and Subodh in Delhi. To them I owe a special debt. Rohan D'Souza, Thomas Mathews, Joya Chatterji, Udralok Bhattacharya and Swapna Liddle have helped in proof reading and editing this work. Without their help this work would have been a much poorer effort. I would like to thank Mr. Binda for help with the Maps.

Finally I would like to thank my family for bearing with me and my overbearing desire to do research. My grandparents and masi have always welcomed me on my long trips to Delhi. Ramesh Uncle (who died during the course of this research) taught me how to believe in myself and my work. My sister and brother-in-law took a keen interest in my work. My mother and Dropti didi have always kept me free of household and financial responsibilities. But for them my desire to do research would have remained unfulfilled.
