ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

A research report such as this is indebted to many people. Foremostly, with great reverence and gratification, I acknowledge Dr. Premangshu Chakraborty, Associate Professor, Department of Geography, University of Kalyani, my supervisor, whose noble, efficient and encouraging guidance throughout my work helped me to accomplish this work. He has been constant source of inspiration to me for completing this work.

I must acknowledge my profound gratitude to Dr. Ranjan Basu, Professor, Department of Geography, University of Calcutta and Dr. Arun Kumar Singh, Ex-Director, Anthropological Survey of India for their valuable suggestions in completing this work. I am sincerely grateful to the Principal of my present college, Bankura Christian College, Dr. Richard R.N. Bajpai for extending cooperation and for constant source of inspiration in all aspects.

I wish to mention the contribution and cooperation extended to me by Mr. B. Barat, Centre in-charge of NRDMS (National Resources Data Management System), Bankura during data collection.

My special thanks goes to my mother Mrs. Shefalika Pan and father Mr. Joydev Pan, wife Mrs. Swapna Pan and all the family members for their constant support in preparing this work. I also express thanks to my students Sri Pavel Sarkar and Sri Subodh Pal for extending their cooperation in various forms. I also like to thank Sri Tanmoy Pal for his cooperation during typing this manuscript.

However, I would like to take the whole responsibility for any error remaining in this study.
