REFERENCES

American Management Association. (n.d.). The Importance of Effective Communication (pp. 1–11).

M. A. Chodynicka (Eds.), New directions in cross-cultural psychology, (pp. 279-295). Warsaw: Polish Academy of Sciences.

Deak, J.J. (nd.). Generational Differences: We all want the same basic things at any age. Leadership Excellence. Ebsco.

Deloitte & Smith, S.W., (2008). Decoding Generational Differences: Fact, fiction ... or should we just get back to work? (pp.1-99) Retrieved from http://www.deloitte.com/assets/Dcom-

IBMAustralia. (2012). Diversity@IBM: Doing it Differently (pp. 1–9). Australia.

Zhang, Y. B. (2005). We examined intergenerational communication and conflict management styles in China. Older and younger Chinese adults were randomly assigned to evaluate one of four conversation transcripts in which an older worker criticizes a young co-worker. The youn, 71–91.