

Acknowledgement

“It is good to have an end to journey towards; but it is the journey that matters in the end”

- Ursula K. Le Guin

And the journey becomes memorable with the people you come across.

There are a number of people without whom this thesis might not have been possible, and I am greatly indebted to them.

First and foremost, I am extremely grateful to my Supervisor, Dr. Subhas C. Biswas, whose meticulous guidance and encouragement gave me the freedom to explore and to overcome the struggles associated with science. His positive attitude towards mistakes only made me strong each time I faltered, it made me learn each time I failed. He has taught me to comprehend, analyse, question and think analytically. In short, he has beautifully revealed the world of scientific research to me and inspired me to pursue my research interest. I also admire him for his perseverance and perspective of life. He has offered his time, expertise, wisdom and continuous support throughout. Without his help, this thesis would not have come into being. I cannot think of a better supervisor to have.

“Thank you Sir. You are the best !”

I wish to express my sincere thanks to Prof. Samit Chattopadhyay, Director, CSIR Indian Institute of Chemical Biology for providing the institutional facilities for carrying out my research work. I greatly acknowledge Council of Scientific and Industrial Research (CSIR), Govt. of India and Supra institutional project (CSIR) for my scholarship and financial support for my work. I also acknowledge the Department of Biotechnology (DBT), India for the financial aid provided during research. My sincere appreciation to the International Society of Neurochemistry (ISN), Alzheimer’s Association (AAICAD), Centre for International Cooperation in Science (CICS) for selecting my work and providing me with the opportunity to present it on a global platform. This helped me to share my ideas and also learn much from the varied research in the field of neuroscience conducted across the world.

I would like to thank Dr. P.K. Sarkar, Dr. K.P.Mohanakumar, and Dr. Sumantra Das for their invaluable support to our lab. I am also grateful to Dr. P.K. Sarkar, for critical reading of my manuscripts and providing me with insightful suggestions. My sincere acknowledgement to all the faculties of Cell Biology and Physiology Division of IICB.

Throughout the journey of my Ph.D I was blessed to be associated with wonderful people who helped me sail through this journey, making me smile even in hard times. To begin with, I would thank my group of “Famous Five”, (at least we considered ourselves so!!) colleagues at IICB. The members of this group included Nandini-di, Pampa-di, Rumana-di, Priyankar and I. It was a pleasure to spend the initial years of research with you guys. You have etched some beautiful memories in my mind which can never be erased. Nandini-di, with whom I share my birth date, is the calm and sophisticated first senior of our lab. She is a charming lady who speaks her mind. Pampa-di, a lady of wisdom and perseverance. Her passions for research and strong determination have always inspired me. Rumana-di, has a cheerful and gleeful personality. I admire her attitude towards life, her ability to think simple, which helps her overcome the biggest of problems. Priyankar, the backbone of our lab and a dear friend of mine; his ability to multitask with utmost efficiency - doing excellent research while also managing orders and bills is amazing. Time spent with each one of you will always be cherished.

The second phase of the journey of my Ph.D was spent with the new kids on the block: Hrishita, Pallabi, Anoy, Akash, Subhalaksmi, Sukanya and Ramesh. Hrishita, now the responsible senior of the lab; Pallabi, my scorpion-buddy and the ‘encyclopedia’ of the lab, she is always up to date with anything and everything happening around you. Anoy, the youngest of them all, the agility with which he works when under pressure is praiseworthy! Akash, a smart-researcher and my pseudo son!! He really gave me the taste of having a naughty kid!! Suvalakshmi, the lady with a solution to all your problems, be it arranging references or managing my derma, she had a solution for all of it! Sukanya, the enthusiastic youngster and Ramesh, he is blessed with the ability to make you laugh even when you are at your worst. I thank you all for being a wonderful part of my Ph.D journey. I must also thank the two talented seniors of our lab Rebecca-di, the ever smiling and Kusumika-di, the quiet and calm lady who patiently listened to all my laments and provided me with sound advice when ever I faced a tiff. I want to thank the summer trainees too who came in our lab at various phases: Ponnuswami, Shivanjali, Rajesh, Sandeep, Monalisa, Alibhia, Poulomi, Siva, Sagarika, Debdeep, Koyeli, Monishita, Arnab, Bhanupriya and Swathi. Especially Shrobona, Abdul, Bhawana and Shivani who came as trainees under me but during the journey helped me learn in a myriad of ways.

I wish to extend my sincere thanks to all the fellow research mates outside my lab: all the members from the labs of Dr. K.P. Mohanakumar, Dr. Sumantra Das, Dr. Suvendranath Bhattacharya, Dr. Nahid Ali, Dr. Debashish Bhattacharya, Dr. Konar, Dr. Sib Sankar Ray, Dr. Mrinal K. Ghosh, Dr. Partha Chakraborty, Dr. Arun Bandhopadhyay, Dr. K. Natarajan and Dr. Uday Bandopadhyay. Sounak-da, Binayak-da and the entire animal house staff.

Finally, my deepest thanks and immense gratitude to my parents without whom this journey would not have been possible. My dearest, Mummy and Daddy, you instilled in me the value and essence of education which I now adorn as a virtue. It is only your effort and struggle that has helped me to get here. It would not have been possible without your love, support and sincere prayers, which I know are always there for me. I can truly never thank you enough. You are the greatest parents one can have, I owe everything to you.

The biggest thank you goes to my husband Ghazi. You have provided me with tremendous motivation and continuous support that has helped me to get me through all the ups and downs during my Ph.D. and at end of the day you have stood by me. I feel blessed to see how much you believe in me. You have helped me in more ways than you can know. This thesis is achievable because of you.

I would take this opportunity to thank Allah, the Almighty for His blessings and mercy on me.

Alhumdulillah for everything.

Suraiya Saleem
CSIR-SRF