

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

First and foremost, praises and thanks to the Allah, the Almighty, for His showers of blessings throughout my research work to complete the research successfully.

A thesis is the culmination of an effort of several years. My heart is filled with deep reverence, gratitude and happiness for all those whose contributions have been significant in realization of my pursuit. Although, each name can't be mentioned, even with my effortful consciousness, however, none is forgotten on my behalf.

First and foremost, I express my ineffable thanks to my guide, Dr. Manmohan Rahul, Professor of Management, Ansal University, Gurgaon, Haryana and my Co-supervisor Dr. Pratika Mishra, Associate Professor, New Delhi Institute of Management, New Delhi for their intellectual and affectionate support throughout my work. Without their understanding and encouragement, I wouldn't have handled this mammoth task. It would be unbiased on my part to express that in span of last four years they have completely transformed me as a researcher, and as a person and I owe my immense indebtedness to them, where words fall short. From the very first day of our interaction to this date, they have been my mentors and philosophers; and have, laid the perfect foundation for my research in my mind and inspired me to excel and achieve heights which I would have never imagined otherwise. Their patience in hard times and strictness in easy times accelerated my research work. To them, I give the credit of this timely submission. I treasure and would always remember the special bond that I share with them. I am extremely grateful to their generosity, nurturing criticism and expert advice on each step of my work which took me closer and faster to my goal.

Everyone at Ansal University stands together and united for a focused common goal due to the strong leadership and a sound platform provided by our Vice Chancellor, Mr. Kamallesh Mishra. It is impossible to move forward without acknowledging the efforts of VC Sir in making this program streamlined and immaculate.

The first stepping stone in the entire congregation of efforts was laid by our Ph.D course work instructors Dr. Ajay Kumar Chauhan, Area Chair- Finance, IMT Ghaziabad and Dr. Jitender Bhandari, Associate Professor, Ansal University. Through their methods of simplicity and accuracy they laid the foundation of techniques which were useful in expressing all the results and in the correct manner.

I would also like to thank my Dean, School of Management Studies, Dr Abhay Kumar and Dr. Amarjeet Kaur Malhotra, Professor, Ansal University for supporting me in spreading my wings of research and exploring all aspects by visiting important libraries and meeting experts from the industry and academia.

In the process of this Ph.D. there are some people who work as catalysts; they ignite you to perform, without actually coming in direct contact with your work. Dr. Vijay Kumar Singh, Professor Ansal University and Dr Monika Khurana, Professor Ansal University, Gurgaon are such people who are a role model to many and has patiently listened to me and advised me always for good, constantly motivated me to break the limits and excel in my field.

I could not have gotten to this point without the strong and continued support of my family. I am extremely grateful to my parents Mr Farooq Ahmed Sofi & Mrs. Maryama Sofi for their love, support, prayers and sacrifices for educating and preparing me for my future. I am very much thankful to my father who had been with me all the time and always being there for me whenever I needed help. My special thanks goes to my mother, who has been as strong as a solid rock through her life and that inspiration from her is the reason of me being here out of home for such long period.

A proceeding as long as a Ph.D. thesis brings about several highs and lows. Those who stand by your side during your lows are the ones that are responsible when you reach the peaks. I have been blessed with some amazing people to name few are Mr Abhishek Dabas and my brothers Sofi Jeelani & Sofi Umer whose words “You can do it Ridhwan” constantly ring in my mind.

I would like to say thanks to all my teachers from my school and college because education is a process and it has started from there so a very big thanks to all my teachers for always encouraging me.
