ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I would like to convey my sincere gratitude and thanks to Prof. Prasanta Kumar Ghosh, my supervisor, for his support, guidance, continuous encouragement and constructive criticism. His advice on both research as well as on my career have been priceless.

I would like also to sincerely thank the following distinguished academicians, development professionals and individuals for their support without whom this thesis would not have been a success. My gratitude to Prof. Asok Sarkar, Department of Social Work, Visva Bharati University, Dr. Subhashree Sanyal Asst. Professor, Department of Social Work, Visva Bharati University, Prof. Bhaswati Ganguly, Head, Department, of Statistics, Ballyganj Science College, Calcutta University for their expertise and technical support. I am also thankful to Head and other faculty members of Department of Social Work for their continuous support and encouragement.

I am grateful to numerous people living with HIV/AIDS (PLHWA) and their network for their sincere support, valuable time to understand the issue and meet the research objectives.

My sincere appreciation to friends that came into my life during my PhD journey; thanks for your friendship and support. In particular, I would like to thank Prasenjit Dey Sarkar, without his support data collection from the field was last to impossible.

I am deeply indebted to my family members, words cannot express how grateful I am to my daughter, mother, father, my brother, sister –in- law, nephew, father-in-law and brother–in-law for all of the sacrifices that you’ve made on my behalf, without whom I could have never completed this thesis.

At the end I would like express appreciation to my beloved wife Laxmi Dhungana Dhamala who spent sleepless nights during my study and was always my support in the moments when there was no one to answer my queries.

Finally, God’s astounding elegance sustained me all through the process of this work and its completion.

Taranath Dhamala