Acknowledgments

This thesis is the outcome of a long journey in which I have been encouraged and supported by many and it is indeed a pleasant moment to express my gratitude to all of them.

I would like to express my profound gratitude to my guide and mentor Dr. Asish Kumar Sen, Emeritus Scientist-CSIR, Organic and Medicinal Chemistry Division, and Dr. Nahid Ali, Raja Ramanna Fellow, Infectious Diseases & Immunology Division, Indian Institute of Chemical Biology, Kolkata, whose innovative thinking, high perception, practical insight and experience in the subject has resulted in the success of the entire endeavor. I hold them in high esteem for their constant guidance, encouragement and concern throughout the period of my research work.

I am extremely grateful to the Directors of the Indian Institute of Chemical Biology, Kolkata, for providing me with laboratory facilities and to DBT, CSIR, Government of India, New Delhi, for providing a fellowship to me during the course of the study.

I am also grateful to Dr. P. Jaisankar, Dr. C. Chowdhury, and all other distinguished scientists of our institute for their precious suggestions and kind help.

I express my sincere thanks to Mr. K. K. Sarkar, Dr. T. Sarkar, Mr. S. Kundu, Mr. D. Bhattacharya and Mr. E. Padmanaban of this institute for helping me in recording NMR, mass spectra, and also for their encouragement and spontaneous cooperation.

I have been very fortunate to have seniors like Dr. Swarbhanu Sarkar, Dr. Samrat Dutta, Dr. Rammyani Pal and Dr. Nivedita Chatterjee whose encouragements at times of crisis; spontaneous cooperation, care and concern have been instrumental in shaping my efforts into success.

The sweet tempered relationship with my friends and seniors Rahul, Priyanka, Piyali di, Bimolendu da, Biswajit da and they have made the period of my research memorable. It was the sheer joy of learning and sharing of knowledge among us, which held us together, and the fun and frolic we enjoyed together made my stay in this Institute a joyous voyage. I wish all of them every success in their days ahead.

I pay my deep respect and special thank to my mom, brother and wife for bringing me up worthy of this academic sphere. Their silent blessings, unconditional love, support and encouragement enabled me to reach my goal. Finally, I would be extremely happy if the findings of my study can in any way be used for the benefit of mankind.

Shyam Ji Gupta

Dated: