I wish to acknowledge the intellectual support, valuable suggestion and cheerful assistance given by Dr. Jamil Farooqui, Associate Professor, International Islamic University, Department of Sociology and Anthropology, Selangor, Malaysia, under whose supervision the present study is done. I also acknowledge his sympathy and moral responsibility for inviting me to Malaysia in order to complete the research work with him.

The author feels immense pleasure to gratefully acknowledge the competent, meticulous and enduring supervision provided by Dr. Noor Mohammad, Professor and Chairman, Dept. of Sociology, Aligarh Muslim University, Aligarh, under whose co-supervision and able guidance the present study came to its final shape. I also sincerely acknowledge his generosity of time and place that was always forthcoming, which is indispensable for such kind of academic work.

I also sincerely acknowledge the continuous encouragement, academic help and co-operation given by Mr. Abdul Waheed, Lecturer, Department of Sociology, Aligarh Muslim University, Aligarh, for completion of this work.

I also wish to acknowledge my gratefulness and thanks to all my other teachers, Department of Sociology, A.M.U., Aligarh, for their sincere inspirations and immeasurable co-operation.

The institute of Objective Studies, Aligarh Chapter, has kindly awarded I.O.S. scholarship which helped me to a greater extent to concentrate myself to my research work. I feel grateful to the institute for this financial support which enabled me to submit my thesis in time.

My very special honour and thanks are due to Mrs. Raj Vadra, who was also the catalyst of this work, for providing incessant encouragement, moral support and constructive views.

Among many others who have helped me in countless ways, I am also grateful and thankful to all of them, for the encouragement and moral support which they have given me as brothers, sisters, friends and colleagues.

Last but not the least, I would like to acknowledge the sincere work and dedication of Mr. Wamiq Mohammad Ali, who typed the manuscript with great efficiency and accuracy.
