Acknowledgements

With gratitude, I remember the good-hearted spirits that gave inspiration and guidance to me in pursuing this Ph.D. research to its completion. First and foremost, I am grateful to Dr. Jetli who was my guide in this Ph.D. research. He devoted his time to work on improvement of my scheme of research and to foster in me the enthusiasm to go forward and complete this research. Besides Dr. Jetli, Dr. Kanchana Mahadevan who is now Head of the Department of Philosophy, Mumbai University, Kalina. Dr. T.C. Roy, who taught me for my M.A course, also have been instrumental in bringing out conceptual clarity on the subject of my comparative research.

Mr. Prashant Vaghani (my husband) gave me a lot of input for my sections on U.G. Krishnamurti and Dada Bhagwan that helped me for furnishing my research work. He was instrumental in introducing U.G. and Dada Bhagwan in my life and I also got an opportunity to meet U.G. personally in Bangalore through him. He also took me for Jñāna vidhi of Dada Bhagwan at Ghatkopar, Mumbai. Prashant was of immense help to me for imbibing various viewpoints on the theme of my research and for providing me with helpful reference materials. Thanks to Dr. Shubhadha A. Joshi and Dr Kanchana Mahadevan for providing facilities and official help as Head of the Department of Philosophy. Thanks to all my Yoga, Buddhism and Vipassana meditation teachers for their help. I also thank the staff and teachers of the Departments of Philosophy and Mahavedeh Foundation of Dada Bhagwan for the help I received in pursuing my research. Thanks to the successors of Dada Bhagwan, Late Dr. Niruben Amin (under whom I attended Jñāna vidhi of Dada Bhagwan) and Deepakbhai Desai (who helped me with my questions during his shibirs at Adalaj). Their satsang’s were of great help to me. Thanks to Late Dr. Vijaya Venkat of The Health Awareness Centre for making me not only understand how body is a self-intelligent organism capable of living in the world of its own but also made me live as per U.G’s idea regarding body, cell and its natural rhythm like how one can live without interfering into natural functioning of the body. May I also express all my gratitude towards Dada Bhagwan as his Ātma jñāna is certainly ‘swayam kriya kāri jñāna’ (self effective knowledge) for me.
I am also grateful to the staff of J.N. Library at Kalina and Fort campuses, and the Asiatic library at Town Hall. My home library by Late Shri Pravinvhandra Vaghani (my father-in-law) and my husband Prashant Vaghani has also helped me immensely in my research.

I am thankful to my own family, my mother-in-law and my mother for their support throughout my studies. I am thankful to my brother, sisters, sister-in-laws, relatives, and my beloved husband who helped me for giving me support and encouragement in this research. I thank Late Shri Pravinchandra Vaghani (my father-in-law) and Late Shri Duleray Jani (my father) for their concerned support in my endeavour. I acknowledge that I am just an instrument in bringing this work.
