ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

These are the moments of Thanks giving!

Long back, I started a journey! A journey of research process, with many doubts and difficulties in mind, not really knowing how to start with and which way to follow. Many people encouraged me to start; showed me the path; and made the path easier for me, due to which, I could complete this journey. It is just impossible even to mention the debt of all of them.

First of all I would certainly like to express my deep gratitude to Dr. B.V. Soman, my guide, who literally paved the way of my research work. The satisfaction that I received during my work owes its credit to his constant encouragement and critical outlook towards research. I gratefully re-collect his advising words, "Concentrate more on the process, rather than on the product."

Apart from my guide many other scholars and learned persons offered their valuable guidance and help at various levels of my research work.
Lectures by and informal discussions with Dr. Ashok Nirpharakar provided proper direction to my search for material on the development of problem solving skills.

Dr. Hemlata Parasnis and Dr. V.S. Deshapande rendered critical comments to modify the training programme.

Principal Dr. V.B. Mehta granted all the requisite facilities and arrangements for the smooth conduct of the field trials in the college.

I am also thankful to Principal Patankar for provisions made by him, for executing the pilot study in Tilak College of Education.

Dr. P.P. Prabhune worked as co-evaluator in the pilot study and Dr. M.V. Barve imparted necessary help in the field trials, Mrs. Harsha Mule worked as an external observer in the sessions.
Mr. A. G. Sule and Dr. P. V. Kulkarni favoured guidance in solving difficulties regarding statistical analysis. Mr. Y. D. Vaishampayan provided the computer assistance for statistical analysis of the data.

Dr. Dunakhe offered valuable suggestions to improve the quality of report writing.

I would like to extend my thanks to the student-teachers involved in the study, who showed great enthusiasm and deep interest in making this experiment a success.

Last, but not the least, all the family members and well wishers provided me moral support, cared for my health and helped a lot in miscellaneous work. Without them, it was just impossible to proceed with ease.

With a slight pause when I think for a while, a strong feeling overcomes me. This terminus of research journey, in fact, is just a small station in an ever lasting journey or it may even be an humble starting point for the further journey in quest of knowledge.
