ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

As I complete my research work, I give all glory, honour and praises to Almighty God for His everlasting love and care, who grant me protection and good health through which I could able to endure this seven years and manage to complete the research assignment that I had undertaken.

I express my sincere and heartfelt gratitude to my most respected teacher (Supervisor), Dr. Prasenjit Biswas, who had given me this great opportunity to do research under him, and under whose able guidance I could complete my work successfully. During my seven years association with him, he has instilled in me a sense of confidence, optimism and courage of facing difficulties and challenges that comes in my life. Notwithstanding my shortcoming and limitation, with great patience he was kind enough to bear with me, share his valuable time, helping me in writing my thesis and keep cooperating with me till the completion of my work. I am forever grateful to him not only for being a great help in my research work, but also for being a source of inspiration for me during my years here in NEHU, and it will continue to be even in the years to come.

I also would like to take this opportunity to thank all my dear teachers in the department for having me as one of their own student and providing all necessary helps in my work. Thank you to all my teachers once again.

I do acknowledge the valuable service rendered to me by the department staff and thank them for making themselves always available for me to assist me in time of my needs.

My special thanks goes to all my beloved research scholar friends in the department, hostel and around this beautiful campus. I express my deep regret for my inability to mention their names and what they had contributed in my life for space constraint; nevertheless they all played a unique and irreplaceable role in my life shaping my personal life and my professional career as a researcher for which I am eternally grateful. Life inside the campus with all of them is indeed wonderful and memorable. I thank each and every one of them for being a wonderful friend to me, and I will always cherish their friendship. I share this special thanks to all my other friends too, both near and far, who did their best part to help and assist me in whatever possible way they could. Their prayer and wishes for me form vital part of my strength that takes me thus far.

And most specially, I thank my family members back at home (my beloved dad and my dear two sisters and brother) for their constant prayer and moral support. In my absence they take all the struggle and suffering part of our family life and let me had a good time here in NEHU. They are my gentle and blessed winds silently but constantly blowing from beneath my humble wings which has enable me now to fly from this present height, and I owe this success of mine to them.
