ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The writing of this thesis on “Socio-Economic Conditions of the Handloom Weavers: A Comparative Study in Guntur and Krishna Districts of Andhra Pradesh” has been an incredible journey and a monumental milestone in my life and a work of this magnitude could not be produced without the willing cooperation of a host of people. I could not have embarked on this expedition and travels this for without the passionate and continued support of advisors, colleagues, friends, and family.

This form of formal acknowledgements should not be regarded merely as a thanks note, it is the best portrayal I could attempt of my respect and love for those few who have been indispensable in accomplishing this work. In the course of writing this thesis, I received assistance, advice and encouragement from a variety of sources.

To begin with, I consider it is a great pleasure to acknowledge my deepest gratitude to my guide, Dr. M. Trimurthi Rao for his keen guidance and valuable suggestions at every stage of the study. His uninterrupted encouragement towards perfection and his personal warmth have been a source of motivation to me throughout the course of this study. His encouragement, able guidance, scholarly advice, perennial force of inspiration, instants moral support and cooperation, cannot be measured. I have no words to express my gratitude.

My sincere thanks to all the respondents, who cooperated during data collection for the study. I got deep knowledge about handloom weavers, their socio-economic conditions and weaving activity by them. They explained every pinpoint about handloom weaving activity and especially without their cooperation I never done this research work.

I am grateful to Dr. Y. Ashok Kumar, Coordinator, Department of Sociology and Social Work, Acharya Nagarjuna University; I express my heartiest gratitude to my teachers Dr. V. Venkateswarlu, Dr. Saraswathi Raju Iyer, Dr. K. Dhanalakshmi and Dr. A. Gowri Sankar Rao, Faculty in the Dept. of Sociology and Social Work.

It is great pleasure on my part to convey my love wetted thanks to my friends particularly to Mr. B. Ramesh, Dr. M. Galaiah and Dr. B. Chaitanya who are always with me since PG to Ph.D. My thanks to Dr. G. Sambasiva Rao, Mrs. Suvartha for their support.

Diction is not enough to express my boundless gratitude and regards from my inner core of the heart to my beloved wife Smt. Anjana and our children Nishanth and Karthik whose cheerful cooperation and pleasant patience, this materialisation could not have seen the light of the day.

Last, but by no means of least I highly obliged to my parents Sri Katama Raju and Smt. Rajamma for their blessings and co-operation during my work.
