ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

This work is the culmination of my research effort but not without the help of those who have always taken keen interest in my academic pursuit. They have provided the necessary impetus to develop an idea into thesis.

My thanks are due to my guide, Dr. Dawa Norbu, Associate Professor in the School of International Studies, JNU, who introduced me to the study of Mongolia and helped me in every possible manner, from beginning to the end and from the range of Chapters to the content of every chapter, in the preparation of this thesis. I'm indebted to him not only for the corrections and improvements he suggested but also for the speed in which he checked my write ups.

It would not have been possible to proceed in my research work had it not been the generous help of Dr. D. Dashpurev, a visiting Professor to JNU from Mongolia. I owe special debt of gratitude to him. My sincere regards are due to Prof. Bimal Prasad, who has been a constant source of inspiration both at M.Phil and Ph.D. levels. My thanks are due to my fellow research student, Sr. Devendra Kr. Sharma, with whom I had the opportunity of discussing my subject and exchange views. My husband, Sr. Subhash Chandra Prasad, helped me in many ways and therefore deserves special thanks.

NEW DELHI

25 May 1992