Acknowledgement

Gratitude, it has been said, cannot be seen. I feel, it cannot be expressed either, for words are not adequate to bring out the reverential feeling of gratitude and indebtedness that is there in my heart for all those who helped and supported me throughout in carrying out this research study and making a dream come true on its successful completion. It would not have been possible for me to complete the study without the guidance and support of many.

I feel honoured to offer my sincere thanks and respect to Prof. M.P Singh, Head of the Economics Department, BHU, for his unfailing support, inspiration, invaluable assistance, the necessary facilities as well as encouragement.

It’s my privilege to acknowledge with deep sense of gratitude and humble submission to my mentor and Research Supervisor Dr. Padmini Ravindra Nath, for her invaluable guidance, affectionate attitude, accompanied by constructive and helpful criticism, suggestions and cooperation throughout my research period. I owe the greatest debt of gratitude to my mentor for her consistent support and guidance for the work.

With great respect I must also record my deep sense of gratitude and sincere thanks to my learned teachers, Prof. B.V Singh and Prof. N.P Singh, Department of Economics, and Prof. Inu Mehta, Women’s College, BHU, who have individually helped me and given useful suggestions throughout the completion of this work. I stand grateful to them.

I am also grateful to all my teachers for guiding me and imparting me knowledge for the successful completion of this work.

I take this opportunity to express my gratitude to the staff members of Sayaji Rao Gaekwad Central Library of Banaras Hindu University for their kind cooperation and support. Besides, I express my utmost thanks to the Library of Delhi University, Delhi School of Economics, and Jawaharlal Nehru University, Delhi, and also Indian Council of Social Science Research and Indian Institute of Foreign Trade (IIFT), New Delhi for providing me required and useful reading materials. I'd also like to thank the members of the NCAER library, New Delhi for their kind support and help.

No work could be completed without the grace of the Almighty. So, I thank the Almighty whose blessings descending upon me continuously and guided all the channels to work in cohesion and coordination to make this study possible and bring it to a successful conclusion.

This acknowledgment will be incomplete if I fail to express my deep sense of obligation to my Parents for their blessings and for all my achievements in life including this thesis. They had always been the source of inspiration. I am extremely grateful to my Brother Mr. Ankur Saxena, Sister Vani Saxena Brother in Law, Pulak Singh and Nephew Yagyankur Saxena for their consistent love and care, who always motivated me by saying – “together we can and we will make a difference” during all my hard days during the period.

I owe a special thanks to Mr. Sandeep Kumar, founder editor MANVANI, National Hindi Magazine, and his family for his consistent and firm support throughout the completion of this work. He had always been a torch bearer through his moral, emotional and physical support to me.

I greatly owe to my dear friends Miss. Sarita Yadav and Mrs. Annapurna Sharma, Mrs. Nidhi Garg and my colleagues for their intangible sacrifices, continuous support and constant encouragement in various stages of this work, without their support this work would not have seen the light of the day.

The credit for the difficult task of making this work into black and white goes to my cousin brother, Mr. Dileep Saxena My special thanks are due to him as well.

I would also like to name my sweet dog Panther, for his unspoken affection, support and sacrifices.

I convey my deepest regard to the Department of Economics, Banaras Hindu University for allowing me to pursue the Ph.D. degree. I also wish to acknowledge the warmth, affection, co-operation and stimulating discussions by members of Department of Economics that made my stay in the department a pleasure and memorable affairs. My thanks is also due to the staff members of the department.

Lastly, I wish to put on record my heartiest gratitude and sincere thanks to one and all those who helped me to reach at this important juncture of life.
