Preface

Since this thesis is written as the final thesis for doctoral degree in Extension Education and primarily aimed to understand the importance of e-resources in the field of research with special reference to agriculture.

The present research was conducted in Uttar Pradesh under the supervision of Dr. O.P.Mishra, Professor and Head, Department of Extension Education, Institute of Agricultural Sciences, Banaras Hindu University.

Chapter I- The introduction part which provide much of general background. This chapter justifies the purpose for choosing this research topic, objectives and its importance.

Chapter II- The review of literature, deals with the earlier research works done on the similar lines and related to the present investigation.

Chapter III- The research methodology deals with the method employed for carrying out the research work and methods of statistical analysis.

Chapter IV- The results and discussion deals with the results of this research work, illustrated with the help of Tables, Figures and discussions which explain the results obtained with appropriate reasons and supports.

Chapter V- The summary and conclusion gives brief description of results of the investigation and the conclusion drawn from this investigation.

References deals with citation which has been consulted during the course of investigation.

Appendices are attached as the final part of this thesis work