ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The present research work is a saga of events from its conception to completion. Alone, I would not have been able to do this. The inspiration and guidance which I had from Prof. H.N. Misra, who always worked as a catalyst in my life, is beyond the scope of my acknowledgement. I express my profound debt of gratitude to him for helping me in getting the work complete and reading the manuscript despite heavy odds. Besides, I must explicitly thank him for his kindness, generosity, tolerance, advice and above all his blessings that go beyond what appears in the following pages.

To Dr. B.M.P. Trivedi, a scientist engaged in advanced research at various institutions and universities in U.S.A., I owe gratitude and appreciation for his spontaneous and generous help in making available otherwise inaccessible source-material so indispensable for my research. Words fail me to express my gratitude to my friend Mr. R. Mishra, who has been involved in this research work at every stage. This work would not have been possible but for his help.

I have also benefitted from my discussions with Dr. L.S. Misra, Assistant Director, Adult & Continuing Education, Kanpur University, Kanpur who has taken pains in preparation of my synopsis and in reading the manuscript. I acknowledge his services with gratitude. To Prof. R.N. Shbukla, Dept. of English, D.B.S. College, Kanpur I express my gratitude for his constructive suggestions and in particular for going through the manuscript of the dissertation. My thanks are also due to my friends and colleagues Dr. D.S. Shashtri, Dr. J.P. Dixit and Dr. A.K. Srivastava who have constantly encouraged and inspired me for the research work.
Amongst the institutions and the people who were instrumental in shaping this thesis, I rate the names of I.I.T., Kanpur, Central Library and American Studies Research Centre, Hyderabad at the very top. The Librarian and staff of the I.I.T., Kanpur Library deserve appreciation for the magnanimity shown to me in making their resources available to me. In particular, I record my appreciation to Dr. Bhoshe Lal, Librarian, Dr. S.K. Srivastava, Dy. Librarian and Shri S.D.K. Tripathi, Assistant Librarian for their help and patronage. I owe my thanks to Mr. Mohd. Taher, Assistant Librarian, American Studies Research Centre, Hyderabad for his prompt service in making xerox copies of the articles available to me. I owe my gratitude to those scholars whose ideas and sometimes even language, I have borrowed to build up my arguments.

I record my thanks to Shri Krishna Kumar, who showed immense maturity and patience in typing my zigzag manuscript of the thesis.

It will be preposterous to thank my parents and my well wishers Dr. A.N. Mishra and Shri Achal Behari Srivastava who have stood by me during good and bad times. Their love and care have been factors which I have mostly taken for granted. Words fail to express my gratitude to them; I rather bow in reverence to them.

I must thank for the help and succour during gestation period of dissertation to my better-half, Shobha, who shared with me the ecstasies and agonies of writing thesis. To my two teenaged sons, Ritesh and Sumit, who almost grew up with this dissertation, I owe a great deal for their forbearance.

Ph.D., as it is said, is the beginning and not the end of research. I, therefore, know it only too well that I might have committed errors and omissions for which I own full responsibility.
