ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I wish to express my sincere appreciation to those who have contributed to this thesis and supported me in one way or the other during this amazing journey. It would not have been possible to write this doctoral thesis without their help to only some of whom it is possible to give particular mention here.

First of all, I am extremely grateful to my supervisor, Professor Niru Hazarika, for her guidance and all the useful discussions and brainstorming sessions in connection with my research work Role of the Chief Secretary in Assam since 1972. Her deep insights helped me at various stages on my research. I also remain indebted for her understanding and support whenever I approached her with any problem. I really appreciate her willingness to meet me at short notice every time and going through several drafts of my thesis. I remain amazed that despite her busy schedule, she was able to go through the final draft of my thesis and meet me in less than a month with comments and suggestions on almost every page. She is an inspiration.

Very special thanks to UGC (NERO) giving me the opportunity to carry out my doctoral research. It would have been impossible for me to even start my study had they not given me Teachers Fellowship. Also I would like to convey my gratitude to Dr.Ajit Ch.Talukdar, Principal, Arya Vidyapeeth College for his support.

I am keen follower of issues concerning Public Administration in India. The publication of First Administrative Reforms Commission Report (1966-70) and its report on State Administration highlighted the need of reorganization of Secretariat Administration in India at State level. The Office of the Chief Secretary is the highest administrative post at State level. In every State of the Union of India the post of the Chief Secretary is considered to be the most prestigious post. He is the brain trust of the State administration and his role is of tremendous importance for the very success of the State administration. Since every State government has its own ecology of administration and hence the role of the Chief Secretary may vary from State to State. Many a time it has been found that there is controversy regarding the style of functioning of Chief Secretary and his relationship particularly with the Chief Minister concern as reported in the National Dailies. The State of Assam as such has its own uniqueness and administrative peculiarities. Therefore, analyzing the role of this highest administrative post generated curiosity in me and I decided to do research on this topic.

I am grateful to retired Chief Secretary H.N.Das, Pranab Kumar Bora, Prabir Datta and J.P.Rajkhowa for giving me their valuable time while having long interview sessions. I am also grateful to Jishnu Barua, Commissioner and Secretary, Department of Administrative Reforms and Training (now Home Commissioner) for allowing me to consult some official documents in connection with my research work.

I would also like to take this opportunity to thank Librarian of Assam Administrative Staff College, Directorate of Training, Government of Assam, Mahesh Bhattacharya for his kind cooperation while using the library. Nintayananda Boro of Department of Personnel (A), Assam Secretariat also helped me a lot while consulting different documents and Civil Lists of Assam Government for which I am really grateful to him. I have consulted many old records of British period while visiting State Archive and District Historical and Antiquarians Studies, Government of Assam. Here I must acknowledge the cooperation of the staffs of these two establishments.

In February, 2008 while attending Refreshers Course in Political Science at ASC, JNU, I took the opportunity to visit Library of Indian Institute of Public Administration, New Delhi where I could go through some of Memoirs written by ICS officer. I consider fortunate to have constant encouragement from senior faculties in the Department of Political Science-Prof. Monirul Hussain, Dr. Sandhya Goswami, Dr. Alaka Sarma, Dr. Noni G. Mahanta, Dr. Akhil Ranjan Datta, Dr. Jayanta K. Sarmah and Dr. Subrajeet Konwer. I am also grateful to the office staff of the Department of Political Science.

A special thanks to my family: Words can not express how grateful I am to my mother-in-law, father-in-law, brother-in-law and my mother. Your prayer for me was what sustained me thus far. I would also like to thank to my wife Rumi for encouraging me throughout this experience. I thank God for my daughter, Jessie and son, Gauranga for being the joy of my life.

Finally, for any errors or inadequacies that may remain in this work, of course, the responsibility is entirely my own.
