ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This thesis was inspired by the countless weavers and their family members strive for dignity and daily bread amidst so many struggles. In these times marked by sweeping and intertwining changes, upheavals on a global scale radically affect the lives of these weavers, and there are countless stories to be told and listened to. This work is an attempt to document a few of these stories, albeit in a different form, tone and from a different perspective.

This thesis would not have seen the light of the day without the kind support of my Supervisor Prof. Zoya Hasan. Despite heavy workload and several pressing engagements, Prof. Hasan went through the entire draft keenly, distilled the arguments embedded and suggested many ways to improve the thesis. Her comments were incisive, her approach pragmatic and kindness worthy of her. It is difficult to measure the quantum of time Prof. Zoya Hasan spent for me in discussing, clarifying and refining my half baked ideas. So, writing of this thesis has been a learning experience enriched by Prof. Zoya Hasan's characteristic openness to fresh lines of thinking. I am deeply touched and honoured by her genuine concern and dignified affection. I express my sincere regards and reverence to Prof. Zoya Hasan.

During the take-off stage of this thesis, the guidance and comments of Prof. Kuldeep Mathur were valuable. I owe a deep gratitude to him for providing the basics in the making of the endeavor.
Words are certainly incapable and expressionless in expressing my indebtedness to my parents-Mrs. Kalpana Pruseth and Prof. Narayan Pruseth, my younger sister Minoo, elder sister Deepika, brother-in-law Dr. Subrata Bohidar, little and cute bhanja Roshan and Deepakda- who have been the constant source of inspiration, support and encouragement.

The writing of this thesis was never a search in solitude and could never have been. The fact that many have contributed in their own way to the making of this thesis in various ways is a fabulous feeling. As it happens so often with my works, there are many, whose contributions are overwhelming and yet difficult to define and specify—Mrs. and Mr. Arakhit Shastri, Nila and Purnima, Narendra Rana, Subrat Mahapatra, Tushar, Binod, Indrajeet, Amir Ali, Mrs. and Mr. Raju, Ajay, Parthada for providing friendly environment. I thank Narendra and Surendra Padhan who provided the necessary infrastructures at the cost of their time, energy and individual spaces with a smile and without ever complaining on my overbearing attitudes. I also convey my thanks to members of 'Nuakhai Group'—Bijaya Padhan, Prakash, Prabhas, Bijaya Sahu, Jyotiraj Patra, Jitu, Ramya, Alok, Jyoti Ratha, Bhavani, Sanju, Rina Somnath for their help and support.

And this piece of acknowledgements is just a simple and certainly inadequate token of my heartfelt appreciations for all of them.
