ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

‘Ajnana-timirandhasya jnananjana-salakaya caksur unmilitam yena tasmai sri-gurave namah’ - with profound respect, I place on record my deep sense of gratitude to my research guides, Prof Y.Rajaram, Dean, Ramaiah Institute of Management Sciences, Bangalore and Prof M.S.Bhat, Former Director, JNTUH, Hyderabad for their constant guidance and encouragement throughout the thesis writing phase. But for their guidance and support, I could not dream of submitting this thesis. They are the gurus who shaped the thesis and gave an opportunity to put my name as the author of the thesis.

I am greatly indebted to Smt H.Rajeswari, currently the Assistant Registrar of JNTUA, Anantapur who introduced Prof M.S.Bhat to me and helped me in meeting the learned professor. I am grateful to Dr B.P.Vani, Assistant Professor, ISEC, Bangalore who assisted in compiling the statistical tables and statistical tests necessary for shaping the thesis. I am indebted to Smt Leela, the librarian at ISEC for providing the census data which is necessary for finalizing the methodology. Prof H.K.Amarnath, Senior Economist, National Institute of Public Finance and Policy, New Delhi is instrumental in introducing the staff of ISEC and I owe a deep gratitude to him. I am also indebted to learned scholar, Prof B.S.Sujendra Prakash who helped not only in compiling the statistical tables and values but also thoroughly revised and checked the results.

Encouragements for writing the thesis came from Sri Radha Krishna, Assistant Registrar at JNTUH and I owe my deep regard to him. For the success of this thesis, I got scores of magazines and books on insurance from my friends in LIC of India, viz, Sri K. Sridhar, AO, KG Road branch, Bangalore, Sri M.Srinivasulu, retired AO from Sales Training College, Tirupati and Smt Vijaya Lakshmi, HGA, Yeswanthpur branch, Bangalore. I owe my sincere thanks to all these three colleagues. I also thank the librarians at MS Ramaiah College and Ramaiah Institute of Management Sciences for providing necessary books and journals. On this occasion I thank Prof A. Manjunatha Sastry, Assistant Professor, MVSR Eng College, Nadargun, Hyderabad, Smt. Prof N. Meena Srinivas, NPMIPS, Tirupati, Sri N. Srinath and Dr. Smt Devarakonda Sandhya Srinath, Ph.D who constantly encouraged me in my endeavors and helped directly or indirectly in the completion of the thesis. I sincerely thank the family members of my thesis guide Prof Y. Rajaram who had to bear with me when ever I visited their house for hours together in discussing the thesis work. I sincerely thank Mrs Bhat, wife of my research guide, Prof M. S. Bhat for receiving my phone calls to Hyderabad and conveying messages to my professor.

I could not have completed the thesis in the busy office schedule of 9 am to 9 pm but for the support of superiors in the office. It is Sri E. C. J. Augustine, the Head (Sales) who promoted and retained me at Bangalore as State Operations Manager in 2006. This act helped me a lot as my thesis guide happened to be at Bangalore only and also it helped in collecting primary data from the rural areas on holidays from Kolar and Bangalore rural areas. The thesis writing is a big work and can not be done in small time. For writing the thesis, I required sufficient leave and Mr Sreekumar, VP (Operations) was kind enough to grant me the necessary leave. I owe a sense of gratitude to both these officers.

I had a desire but no inclination to venture upon this project for paucity of time. It is my wife, Dr Bharathi who encouraged me to register for Ph.D and but for her support I could not have ventured this. My mother Annapurnamma encouraged me a lot. I owe deep gratitude for both of them. In my family constant support always comes forth from my brother, Sri K. Aravinda Rao, IPS, Director General of Police, Hyderabad who is instrumental for my growth in the career and personality. He encouraged me from the beginning and I owe special gratitude to him. I also owe a lot to my sisters, Smt K. Lakshmi Narasamma, Senior lecturer in English, Arts College, Cuddapah and Smt K.Rukminamma who is staying at Bangalore. My little daughters, Sindhuja and Samhitha constantly supported me and helped in preparing charts and for typing of a few paragraphs. My brother in law, Sri Seshachalam, HOD of Electronics in BMS College, Bangalore is always a source of support and I thank him for the completion of this thesis.

I also place on record my advance thanks to the unknown professors who are going to evaluate the thesis by sparing their precious time in perusing through the thesis. I thank all the professors and team of the committee members at JNTUH who provided me an opportunity for writing the thesis. I thank Sri B. Nagaraju of Suma Enterprises, Bangalore for helping in alignment and printing of the thesis books.

Finally I humbly pay my obeisance to my beloved mother who showered her blessings and always stood as a source of inspiration to me. I dedicate this thesis to my mother with a deep sense of gratitude.

K. NAGARAJA RAO