ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The present study on "Micro-finance and Economic Empowerment of Weaker Sections" (A case study of Hajo Development Block, Kamrup District, Assam) is the result of my sincere efforts and help of many people, committees, organizations and institutions. First and foremost, I acknowledge my sincere gratitude to my guide Dr. Kandarpa Kumar Barman, Professor, Department of Economics, Gauhati University and to all those generous personalities who have directly or indirectly lend me a helping hand in the preparation of this study.

I am immensly grateful to the University Grants Commission, New Delhi for awarding me the Ph.D. Fellowship for the period of three years, which enabled me to carry out my project in time.

This work would not have been possible without the help of Dr. Amarendra Sahoo, Regional Director, Reserve Bank of India, North-East Region, Dr. Padmalochan Hazarika, Head, Department of Commerce, Gauhati University and Dr. Debrabrata Das, Reader, Department of Commerce, Gauhati University. I must also thank Dr. D. D. Mali, Director (Retd.) Indian Institute of Entrepreneurship for his valuable guidance in preparation of my schedules/questionnaire. I acknowledge the help extended by the professors of Assam Agricultural University, Jorhat, especially Dr. U. K. Baruah, Sr. Scientist, FRC, Dr. Anubha Saikia, Professor, Department of Agricultural Economics and Farm Management, Dr. H.K. Changmai, Associate Professor, Department of Agricultural Economics and Farm Management, Dr. Rizuddin Ahmed, Associate Professor, Department of Agricultural Economics and Farm Management. I am particularly grateful to my friend Mr. Dipak Das, and my brother Kamal Deka, Dipak Chakrabarty and Swapan Sinha for their intellectual support, advice and continuous inspiration. I also acknowledge the help received from Project Director, DRDA, Kamrup, especially from Mr. N.C. Das, Extension Office and from Mr. Santosh Choudhury, Extension Officer, Credit, Hajo Development Block for their constant encouragement and valuable suggestions during the course of study as well as preparation of the manuscript. I express my deep sense of gratitude to Managers of Assam Gramin Vikash Bank, Kulhati Branch, Bamundi Branch, Rampur Branch, Baromboi Branch and especially to my friend Mr. Bolen Choudhury, Manager, Allahabad Bank, Hajo Branch who helped me with all data collection from the field, gave constructive suggestions and moral support at all time during my fellowship period.

I am highly grateful to faculty members of Indian Institute of Entrepreneurship and the honorable teachers of Gauhati University, Dibrugarh University, Assam Agricultural University, Tezpur University, North Bengal University and the enlightened staff of the National Library, Kolkata; Zonal office, NABARD, Guwahati; Indian Council of Social Science Research, Regional Centre, Shillong; OKD Institute of Social Change and Development, Guwahati; I.I.E. Library, Guwahati; Documentation Centre, Dibrugarh University; SIRD Library; NIRD Library; North Bengal University Library for allowing me easy access to these institutions/ extending to me the necessary support services.
I shall remain indebted to Dr. Brojendra Nath Raychoudhury Registrar, I.I.T., North Guwahati for giving me the relevant and demanding research topic “Micro- finance” in the very beginning of my work. I also wish to record my appreciation for the completion of works to Dr. Homeswar Goswami, Prof.(Retd.), Department of Economics, Dibrugarh University; Dr. Jayanta Kumar Gogoi, Professor, Department of Economics, Dibrugarh University and Dr. Kumud Chandra Braah, Head, Department of Economics, Dibrugarh University who made several constructive suggestions for improving my work and making it really useful one for all scholars, policy makers, Government/NGOs and Bankers.

I am also extremely grateful to my respected father Dr. Jogendra Nath Bayan (SPO, Retd.), N.F. Railway and to my loving mother Mrs.Uttara Bayan, my husband Mr. Amal Chandra Kalita (Dhan)(SSO,FSL), Mr.Gyan Basumatari (Pastor, Victory Family Centre ) and all other members of my in-laws family and parent’s family for their unstinted affection, co-operation, assistance and for their generosity which has been a tremendous source of inspiration and to my cute and lovely daughter Shweta Kalita (Richu) who missed my company and sacrificed her comfort on many occasions during the research period.

For the various short-comings and inadequacies, I alone am responsible. However, any feedback would be most welcome, for improving the thesis and enhancing its utility value as a source for micro and rural credit institutions.
