Postscript

I would like to state here that there are four books by Evelyn Waugh which I have not read, all travel books. They are:
1. Remote People, Duckworth, 1931.

I have tried my best to get these books but without avail. They have been out of print for many years. They are not available in the major University libraries of India nor in the National Library, Calcutta. The Librarian, M.S. University Library, Baroda and the Librarian, Gujarat University Library, Ahmedabad wrote to the University of Texas, Austin, U.S.A. which specializes in Evelyn Waugh studies, requesting them to loan the books, but no reply was forthcoming. I wrote to Mr. Auberon Waugh, Evelyn Waugh's eldest son, for a loan of the books, but again, there was no reply. I wrote to two out-of-print bookshops in America but even with them the books were not available. A friend of mine who went to U.K. and Canada enquired for the books in a few of the major bookshops in these countries but without success. I have, however, read carefully When the Going Was Good issued in Penguin Books in 1951 in which extracts from Labels, Remote People, Ninety-two Days and Waugh in Abyssinia appear. From a reading of these extracts I am reasonably satisfied that a study of these books would not have materially affected the line of argument followed in
