I would like to thank most sincerely my supervisor, Professor Dr. Muhammad Yasin Mazhar Siddiqui, who took a personal interest in my research proposal. It was his interest and encouragement that confirmed me in my desire to undertake a critical investigation of Tadabbur-i-Qur'an. Professor Siddiqui provided me with the freedom I needed to undertake a serious investigation of Islahi's approach to understanding the Qur'an. I am also grateful to him for the time he gave to an attentive reading and consideration of my text.

I am grateful to the Vice-Chancellor and to the Controller of Admissions for their kind assistance during the time of my initial enrolment at the university. Fr. Victor Edwin S.J. and Mr. Kuriakose also gave me valuable assistance during that time of orientation.

The Chairman of the Department of Islamic Studies, Prof. Sayyid Ahsan and the academic staff of the Department provided a suitable environment in which I could pursue my research. The Librarian, Mr. Kabir Ahmad and his staff were always ready to assist me. I could approach Prof. Zafarul Islam, Dr. Abu Sufyan Islahi and Dr. Istiaque Ahmad Zilli with any questions I had.

I will always remember Mr. G.A. Ansari (Engineer, retired) whose kind assistance made my stay in Aligarh so much more comfortable. Fr. Johnson, Fr. Denis de Souza and Fr. Akkara provided a friendly welcome when I visited them at St Fidelis' Church. I also received the encouragement of Mr Muheeb ul Haque and Dr Arif Islam whenever I visited the Staff Club.

I was able to complete this thesis because of the encouragement I received from my Jesuit brothers in Australia, Indonesia, Pakistan, Sri Lanka and India and my dear family in New Zealand. It is the fruit of their interest over the years.
