NOTE ON BIBLIOGRAPHY

The bibliography is divided into four sections. The Primary Section comprises the texts chosen for close analysis. Secondary Section 2 comprises 3 Subsections which constitute the secondary sources for this study. Secondary Section 2(i) is of critical studies specifically on each of the authors chosen for analysis. Section 2(ii) comprises works that have helped me understand travel writing and cultural encounter. Section 2(iii) comprises critical works of general nature. Web Sources, Section (i) is useful website details related to this study. Related Web Articles (ii) comprises useful articles in websites that are used for this study.
BIBLIOGRAPHY

Primary Sources

Secondary Sources 2

Section 2(i)

Secondary Sources 2

Section 2(ii)

Secondary Sources 2

Section 2(iii)

Web Sources

Section (i)

The wikipedia is a website which serves as an encyclopedia on literature in various languages. The English version of the wikipedia is a resourceful website that gives elaborate information on travel literature. It also provided background informations on the travel narratives of D. H. Lawrence, V. S. Naipaul and Bruce Chatwin.

http://www.anb.org/articles/15-00398.html
This website would enable to get immense information on travel literature with scholarly articles on the area.

http://www.bartleby.com/225/index.html#1
The bartleby website provides information on the writer’s in English literature. This was useful to get background information on the writer’s who were selected for the study.

http://www.bookpage.com/9708bp/nonfiction/withchatwin.html
The book page provides information on Bruce Chatwin’s contributions to travel literature with articles by scholars in the area.

http://www.c-span.org/
C-span is a website that helped to browse on travel literature.

http://www.harpers.org/
The harpers web site provides literary articles that are useful for understanding travel narratives from a critical perspective.

http://www.historychannel.com/
The history channel is a website that would provide information on writers engaged in the field of travel narration including D. H. Lawrence and Bruce Chatwin.

http://www.independent.co.uk/arts-entertainment/books/reviews/a-writers-people-by-vs-naipaul-397866.html

Reviews on travel narration by various writers/travellers are included in this website. The reviews included in the website include that of V. S. Naipaul and his contemporaries.

http://www.libraries.iub.edu.html

This website provides relevant information on travel literature with references to select writers.

http://www.newsweek.com/

The news week provides updated information on the new trends that are available in travel literature.

http://www.norway.org.uk/culture/literature/travel/travel.html

The Norway website is an informative online source that helped to collect information on travel literature. The website also helped to collect information on travel literature in relation to the travel writer’s from different parts of the world. It is also a source of information on culture.

The New York Times is a web site that had provided articles from various journals on travel narratives that were written by established writers in this field and reviewed by critics/scholars who are working on travel literature.

http://www.sosig.esrc.bris.ac.uk/

This website provides information on travel literature in general.

http://www.spikemagazine.com/0896chat.php

The spike magazine website provides information on travel narration.
This website provides information on classic travel narratives. The importance of travel writing as a developing genre is also discussed in this website with reference to the travel writers.

The Atlantic website gives information on the research sources that are available on travel literature.

This website provides information on travel literature in particular. Articles by eminent critics/scholars working in the area are also included. The website also provided information on travel as a genre, its history, the writers involved etc.

The Victorian web site contains articles by scholars in the field of travel narration. Articles on D. H. Lawrence and Bruce Chatwin are exclusively seen in this web site.

This website provides general information on the new trends in literature including travel narration.

This website would provide information about articles on travel writing.

Related Web Articles

Section (ii)

