ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Young people in modern society are constantly subjected to confusion of values that are all around them and, as such, they are passing through a period of transition. Forces of traditionalism and modernity are working side by side as a result of which the mind of Indian youth is in a state of dilemma. This situation inspired for the present research to know the changing social, economic, religious and political attitudes of the students.

Above all, I express my deep sense of gratitude to my Supervisor, Professor R.N. Saksena, without whose valuable guidance and attention this work would have not at all been possible to be finished. I will be failing in my duty if I do not mention the name of my mother who encouraged me to finish the study. I express a great appreciation for her affectionate inspirations.

Thanks are also due to Dr. Jamil Farooqui, Lecturer in the Department of Sociology, Aligarh Muslim University, Aligarh, who has lent his helpful hand for this study from time to time. I also want to express my thanks to Mr. Mahmood Mustafa Siddiqi, Lecturer, Department of Sociology, Aligarh Muslim University, Aligarh, who has given me all possible help in this research work.

In the end I feel very much obliged to the young respondents who spared their precious time to answer the questions. Without their cooperation indeed this project could not have been possible to the present shape of the thesis.
