Each of the following questions consists of a simple statement describing an event, followed by four alternative explanations of that event. Please indicate which of the four you think is the best, by writing the number 5 in the space next to it. Then rate each of the other alternatives from 0 to 4, where a 0 would mean that you thought it was completely inadequate, while a 4 would mean that you thought it was almost as good as your first choice. Note then that you must rate one, but only one alternative on each question a 5. Even if none of the choices seem entirely satisfactory, choose the best and give that a 5. Then all of the others are rated relative to that best one. The three remaining choices can be rated all 4's, or all 0's, or anything in between, such as for instance a 4, a 2, and a 0, or two 3's and a 1.

Many of the choices assume that some facts are true, and of course the brief description given does not provide any facts. Assume that the facts in each alternative are true in deciding how good they are.
