ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

This study has been completed under the guidance of Dr. Singh, Dean, Faculty of Commerce, M.S. University Baroda. I am thankful to him for his invaluable advise and constant encouragement to me for completing this study. I take this opportunity to thank to Department of Business Economics, Faculty of Commerce for extending necessary facilities.

I am extremely thankful to Prof. R. Radhakrishna, Director, Indira Gandhi Institute of Development Research, Mumbai for sparing some of his precious time for making valuable suggestions pertaining to my work. I also had the benefit of discussions with Prof. Rohit Desai, Sardar Patel Institute Of Economic and Social Research. My sincere thanks to him for the same.

Thanks are also due to the library of M.S. University, Baroda, Gokhale Institute of Politics & Economics, Reserve Bank Of India, Mumbai, for there kind co-operation whenever I visited these libraries.

Sincere thanks are also due to Dr. V.K. Padaria and Shri B.C. Patel of Department of Economics Faculty of Arts, M.S. University of Baroda, who helped me in statistical data processing.

I am extremely indebted to my father, my father-in-law, my mother-in-law without who’s blessings and help this study would not have seen light of the day. I cannot forget my little son also who willingly faced the hardships of living without me for one month in the interest of completion of this work.
