ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

It is my privilege to record my deep sense of gratitude to Dr. Zahid Husain Qureshi, Reader, Department of Geography, North-Eastern Hill University, Shillong, whose excellent supervision, able guidance, valuable suggestions, probing approach and constant encouragement enabled me to complete the present Ph.D. thesis.

I respectfully offer my sincere thanks to Prof. D.K. Nayak, Head, Department of Geography, North-Eastern Hill University, Shillong for encouraging me and providing various facilities for the timely completion of the thesis. Thanks are also due to all the faculty members and staff of the Department of Geography, NEHU, for their help and encouragement during the pursuit of the thesis.

I am extremely grateful to the Director, Anthropological Survey of India for giving me permission to register myself for the Ph.D. work and also for granting me permission to use the data presented in the Ph.D. thesis. Thanks are also due to the then Director Anthropological Survey of India and the Head of Office, Andaman & Nicobar Regional Centre, Port-Blair for providing me opportunity to work among the Jarawa during the period from 1998 to 2004. I am indebted to my office colleagues namely Shri Kanchen Mukhopadhyay, Shri Ramesh Sahani, Shri Samir Biswas, Shri Amitava Dinda and Shri Sumitabha Chakravorty for helping me in many ways throughout the study. I am grateful to Dr. Sumit Mukherjee and Dr. P.K. Guha for their active help and co-operation during the compilation of this work.

I express my thankfulness to Andaman Administration, particularly the Director, Tribal Welfare and Executive Secretary, Andaman Adim Janjati Vikas
Samiti and their staff for providing me necessary data related with the present work and extending all possible help and logistic support during the course of the field work.

Heartfelt thanks are expressed to my wife Pretty for providing me constant inspiration and support and to my little daughter Pragya who sacrificed a part of her childhood towards this work. I owe a deep sense gratitude to my parents and other family members for their incessant encouragement throughout my academic pursuits.

Last, but not the least, I would ever remain indebted to the Jarawa people, the subject of my thesis, who were always benign and kind to me and despite the hurdle of the language helped me in innumerable way during the field work.
