ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This exhilarating experience of experiential learning has been possible only because of an enigmatic, scholastic and warm human being, my research supervisor Prof. C.N. Krishna Naik, Sri Krishnadevaraya Institute of Management, S.K. University, Anantapur. His vision, pragmatic approach, dynamism, facilitative approach and humility have been the guiding spirit behind the study. I place on record my immense gratitude and thankfulness to him for his constant encouragement, knowledgeable counsels, guidance, constructive criticism and his analytical acumen. With a deep sense of respect I wish to thank Smt. Manjula Naik, for her hospitality during my visits.

It would be only befitting to convey my humble reverence to Sri B. Ramachandra Reddy, Head of the Department and Chairman, Board of Studies, S.K. Institute of Management for all the support and intellectual inputs into this work.

My sincere and heartfelt thanks to Sri P. Subba Rao, Dean, S.K. Institute of Management and Vice-Principal, S.K. University, Ananatapur, for the co-operation and encouragement through out.

I wish to place on record my deep sense of reverence and gratitude to Prof. C.H. Ramprasad Rao, for his guidance, counsel and encouragement from the time of admission to submission of dissertation.
I would like to convey my gratitude to Prof. L. Venugopal Reddy, Vice-Chancellor, Nagarjuna University, Guntur whose advice and cooperation immensely helped me in the completion of this work.

Feelings of awe, inspiration and gratitude fill me as I express my admiration and thanks to Prof. Hampanna, Prof. Muthyala Naidu and Prof. K. Ramakrishna Reddy who have taught me everything and shaped my destiny.

My sincere thanks to Dr. B. Krishna Reddy, Dr. K. Venu Gopal Rao, Dr. P. Prem Chand Babu, Dr. P. Murali Krishna, Dr. B. R. Megha Raj and Dr. B. Anitha, Associate Professors, S.K. Institute of Management, S.K. University, Anantapur for the fruitful discussions and invaluable suggestions.

I wish to warmly express my thanks to my friend and Assistant Professor, Sri. D. Prabhakar, S.K. Institute of Management.

I would like to express my sincere thanks to Prof. K.S.N. Reddy, Principal, Kandula School of Management, Kadapa and Dr. G.L. Narayanappa, Head of the Department, Kandula School of Management, Kadapa for their co-operation and advice.

I deem it privilege to express my respect, regard and indebtedness to Prof. C. Subba Rao, Head of the Department, Industrial and Production Engineering, K.S.R.M. College of Engineering, Kadapa, under whose visionary stewardship undertook my doctoral work. His encouragement, initiative and mentorship have been instrumental in expediting my work.

Meticulous typing, alignment, crucial inputs and painstaking efforts are what my friend Mr. V. Mallikarjuna, Assistant Professor, Kandula School of Management, Kadapa, contributed without any fanfare. I wish to let him know that this work wouldn’t be a reality without his untiring cooperation, help and the time spared for me.

In depth analysis, thought provoking discussions, constant critique and insights of my fellow researcher Mr. D. Pradeep Kumar, Assistant Professor, Kandula School of Management, Kadapa were pivotal in the final outcome of my dissertation. I will always remain thankful to him.

My warmest thanks are due to my friend Mr. G.V. Prabhakar, Assistant Professor, Kandula School of Management, Kadapa for his scrupulous editing and proof reading.

My sincere and heartfelt thanks to my friend V. Sreekar, I.R.S., Assistant Commissioner of Income Tax, Aayakar Bhavan, Hyderabad for his timely help and co-operation throughout my work.

My profound thanks to my friend Mr. Rajesh who has been a constant support during my work.

I deem it an honour to convey my personal thanks to the numerous corporate hospital managements for the invaluable data provided and the time spared in spite of their hectic schedule. I express my gratitude to physicians of nursing homes at Kadapa, who gave me the requisite comprehension of technical medical jargon.

My heart felt thanks go to the numerous institutions that allowed me to use their libraries for literature reviews. They include their librarians and staff of libraries of S.K. University, Anantapur, S.V. University, Tirupathi, Indian Institute of Management, Bangalore, Institute for Socio-Economic Change, Bangalore, Administrative Staff College of India, Hyderabad, Indian Institute of Science, Bangalore, Andhra University, Vishakapatnam and Osmania University, Hyderabad.

I would like to convey my thanks to my students for the logistical support and co-operation in completion of the work.

I would always remain indebted to my dearest parents, my wife Smt. Sujatha, and Pranav, my loving son who have rallied behind me through the thick and thin of it and without whose support this work would not have been successful.
