ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I am thankful to the authorities of the S.K. University for providing me an opportunity to pursue my research work and submit the Ph.D. thesis independently.

I am grateful to my teacher Prof. Mohammed Ghouse for introducing me to the Critical Legal Theory and the relevance of interdisciplinary approach to study the Constitution and the Court. He has been a source of inspiration and constant guide till he left for Nigeria on foreign assignment and retired from service immediately after his return to India.

I deeply acknowledge with thanks for the academic help which I received from Prof. G. Haragopal, Department of Political Science and Prof. D. Narasimha Reddy, Department of Economics; both are working in the Central University, Hyderabad. They enlightened me on Political Economy for understanding the Indian State and the Supreme Court. I am thankful to Dr. G. Satyanarayana, Reader, Department of Economics, Sri Krishnadevaraya University, Anantapur for clarifying fundamental concepts in economics and providing useful references to the issues discussed in the present study.

I have richly benefited from the discussions which I continually held with Mr. K.G. Kannabhiran, President at National level for the People’s Union For Civil Liberties (PUCL), Senior Advocate, High Court of Andhra Pradesh, and Dr. K. Balagopal, General Secretary for Andhra Pradesh Civil Liberties Committee (APCLC). I am thankful to them for their suggestions.

I wish to thank Prof. E. Vijaya Kumar, Dean and Head, Department of Law; my teacher-colleague Prof. Thankachan Jacob, Chairman, Board of Studies; and other colleagues: Dr. S. Lalitha,
Dr. B. Hydervali, Dr. R.G. Bhagavath Kumar, Dr. K. Raghunatha Reddy, Sri S.V. Pulla Reddy, Sri J. Vijaya Kumar and Mrs. G. Ramalakshmi.

I am indebted to my wife R. Sasikala and my Son Arun for helping me in several ways to work and complete the thesis.

I am thankful to Mr. N.Hemakshi Achari for typing the manuscript neatly and efficiently.
