ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I am extremely thankful to my research Supervisor Dr. K. Nageswara Rao, Reader and Head, Department of Economics, Sri Krishnadevaraya University, Anantapur for his unsparing and untiring guidance and help at different stages of this work. He planned the field work of this study efficiently and supervised it effectively. He went through the draft very meticulously and offered many constructive suggestions. It would never have been possible for me to draft the dissertation of this sort without his personal supervision. I, Therefore, remain indebted to him.

It is my pleasure to thank Sri G. Bhaskar Rao, Lecturer in Economics, Sri Krishnadevaraya University, Anantapur for his continued co-operation and assistance during different stages of this work. I record my deep sense of appreciation for his help.

I am very thankful to the Tobacco Board Chairman, Sri P.P. Williams, Executive Director, Sri C. Chandran, Personnel Officer of the Chairman, Sri N. Badrinarayana, Production manager, Sri P. Khajana,

I am grateful to our college President and Correspondent Sri M. Srihari Rao and the College Committee for permitting me to take up this work.

My thanks are due to the authorities of Sri Krishnadevaraya University, Anantapur and the Department of Economics in particular for according me enrolment to the M.Phil Course and providing the necessary facilities in the Department.

I will be failing in my duty if I do not express my gratitude to the Library authorities of S.V.K.P. Degree College, Podili, Sri Krishnadevaraya University, Anantapur and Nagarjuna University, Guntur.

I take this opportunity to record my sense of appreciation to Sri A.H. Sreenath and Sri B. Rajasekhara Rao for their efficient typing of this dissertation.

A. KRISHNAIAH.
