ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The author owes the greatest debt of gratitude to his Supervisor, Professor G.S. Bhalla, M.A. (Economics & Maths.), Ph.D. (London), Chairman, Centre for the Study of Regional Development, Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi, for his constant prodding, advice and guidance. His critical comments and painstaking supervision have brought the dissertation to its present shape.

The author wishes to sincerely thank his teacher, Professor S.B. Rangnekar, Head, Department of Economics, Panjab University, Chandigarh, who provided all possible research facilities in the Department.

Dr. C.H.H. Rao made many useful suggestions on an earlier draft. Discussions with Professor S. Naqvi, Dr. Anjan Mukherjee, Dr. (Mrs.) Sheila Bhalla and Professor Udham Singh have been extremely stimulating. Professor J.P. Lewis and Professor Kazushi Ohkawa readily made available the reprints requested for.

The author is grateful to the Statistical Organisation, Government of Punjab, for allowing him to copy the 1969-70 farm management data and a part of 1969-70 tractor cultivation data. Special thanks are due to the IBM-1620 Computer Centre, Panjab University, especially the two programming experts, Mr. Chander Mohan Behl and Dr. Surjit Singh who rendered constant help to the author in programming and processing of his data.
The author owes a debt of gratitude to the Indian Council of Social Science Research for awarding him a doctoral fellowship for seven months. Thanks are also due to the Panjab University for the grant of study leave from 1-10-1974 to 30-4-1975 and to the University Grants Commission for a book grant of Rs. 1,000.00.

The author shall always remember the help and cooperation rendered in many ways by his friends, Dr. Gopal Krishan, Dr. R.C. Chandna, Dr. Jhujhar Singh, Mr. H.S. Shergil and Mr. Naveen Tandon.

Mere words cannot express the author's gratitude to his wife, Suneeta, who not only shouldered the entire burden of household affairs singlehandedly but helped him in data punching as well.

Lastly, the author's respectful gratitude to his mother who sacrificed much and waited too long.

(Gopal Krishan Chadha)
