Working as a Ph.D. student at the Centre of Advanced Study (CAS) in Geography, Panjab University, Chandigarh was indeed a splendid but challenging experience for me. All the years I have spent here for this doctoral research proved instrumental in shaping my research learning and carving out the future course of my research. During this journey many people and places played an important role in guiding my path and it was definitely not possible for me to thrive in my work without their support. I would like to pay a very humble tribute to all those people and places and acknowledge their contribution.

It is with immense gratification that I thank my very dear and respected supervisor & mentor Dr Karanjot Kaur Brar, Associate Professor, Centre of Advanced Study (CAS) in Geography, Panjab University, Chandigarh for guiding this research work. Her support, guidance and scholarly insight helped me not only in framing the very basic structure of this work and carrying out this entire task but also guided me in developing my own research interests. I look forward to further research association and guidance in future.

I wish to express my deep sense of gratitude to Dr Simrit Kahlon, Assistant Professor, Department of Geography, DAV College, Chandigarh for her scholarly input and valuable suggestions; the innumerable and precious hours she spent in reading the text greatly enriched this thesis.

I am thankful to Prof Gopal Krishan, Professor Emeritus, Centre of Advanced Study (CAS) in Geography, Panjab University, Chandigarh for his constant encouragement and support.

This research work would not have been possible without the gracious support of all my teachers, administrative and technical staff at the Centre of Advanced Study (CAS) in Geography, Panjab University, Chandigarh. I extend my sincere thanks to all the members of the department.

My heartfelt thanks are extended to numerous people from different government organisations/institutions who provided me with data and information. Special thanks are due to the people associated with ‘The Tribune’ and ‘Dwarka Das’ Library, Sector-15, Chandigarh from where I accessed the news archives for historical data on disasters.

I owe special thanks to the local people of Kullu district who rendered their valuable time and hospitality during the field visits. Their help and active participation in discussions and interviews provided me with local insight into the research problem.

I am indebted to my dear friends & backpacking buddies Achho, Bharat, Chint, Kunal, Ranbir, Suri, Vijay, and Yashwant. Their great company, intellectual criticism and help have seen this work through. Special thanks are due to Yashwant for technical support, incisive remarks & constructive criticism in all the times that I was stuck in my analytical endeavors.

Words are inadequate for offering sincere thanks to fellow research scholars and friends, Bharti, Bhawna, Inder, Navita, Pallavi, Rajan and Sucha Singh for their help and encouragement.

Finally and most importantly, I express my heartfelt thanks to my beloved parents, sisters and family members for their blessings, encouragement, support and confidence in me to give my best in achieving this endeavor.

I dedicate this work to two places ‘Kullu: Valley of River Beas’ and ‘Lahaul: Valley of River Chandrabhaga’ with which I share a deep and extremely fond bond of love that is even beyond my own comprehension.
