"A journey is best measured in friends rather than miles"
- by Tim Cahill

As I approach the end of my present journey, I feel overwhelmed with joy and deep gratitude. Not only did I have the good luck of having steadfast support from my guide, friends and family, so many special people entered my life to accompany me in this journey.

The last four years have been the most eventful years of my life. It was the most hectic and exciting phase in my life, so far. Often as I would go through my research many changes happened around me, some were gradual and some sudden, I felt that my Doctoral Research was one of the things that anchored me all through.

If only what I feel could be expressed in words, I would run short of them in expressing my regard and gratitude to the people who stood by me through it all. Not only did the ones, in person helped me, I am also very thankful to God for being with me and watching over me.

"A good teacher can inspire hope, ignite the imagination, and instill a love of learning."

The work of this thesis could not have been completed without the efforts, help and guidance of Prof. Meena Sehgal, Department of Psychology, Panjab University, Chandigarh, India. Her unending support and understanding helped me face the academic hurdles with confidence. She is known for her intellectual and flawless research projects, prolific writings and for her impeccable guidance. Her scholarly supervision, endless patience and continuous encouragement although this research work, made it possible for me to endure. Her perseverance to go through even the minutest detail of this work and dissemination of new ideas has been of great help.

I would also like to extend my gratitude to Prof. Jitendra Mohan, Professor Emeritus, Panjab University, for providing academic support and encouragement during the course of this research.

I thank department of psychology for providing infrastructural facilities.

- Anthony Brandt

I thank my parents, Shri Ashok Yadav and Shrimati Urmi Yadav, for the motivation, encouragement and support as can be given only by parents. I feel so blessed to have my Dad’s benevolence and the numerous pats on the back that always worked like a charm when I was feeling low and my mother’s patient loving ear whenever I felt frustrated. All the endless times Siddhartha would run errands for me. I feel so lucky to have a wonderful brother like him. Anukriti, my darling sister helped me through this in her own special way. She would hear me and keep me awake at nights before deadlines, being the true pillar of strength for me.

During this journey, when I got married, I found my lifelong companion and friend in Krishan, who motivated me in the way I needed. He really played a big role in keeping the hope alive in me. His persuasion gave me continuous push to keep moving ahead. I also had the good luck of having encouragement and affection from my in-laws. Their appreciation and recognition of my hardwork, strengthened my faith and belief in myself.

“A friend is someone who understands your past, believes in your future, and accepts you just the way you are.”

That is exactly what I found in Sarika Thakur, Shruti Gupta, Capt. Sunaina Singh, among many others. The wonderful moments spent with each one of them become an indelible part of my memory of this process. Additionally, I thank Dr. Akanksha Tripathi, Dr. Harinder Kaur, Dr. Pegah Farokhzad and lastly, my companion all through in the research Jasmine Dhatiwat, for all the help and support they provided.

My life has been touched and enriched by such amazing people, who believed in me even when I was not too joyous, who supported me when I was vulnerable, for people who heard me out, who encouraged me, guided me, lovingly rebuked me when I needed it, who gently held my hand and helped me achieve and see this day.

Thank you all and many others whom I have not mentioned here but without their support the present research would not have accomplished.
