ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The most important acknowledgement, by far, is to my distinguished and esteemed supervisor, Dr. B.G. Banerjee, Professor, Department of Anthropology, Panjab University, Chandigarh for his valuable guidance, encouragement and remarkable patience throughout the period of executing this thesis.

It is my privilege to thank Prof. Dr. R.N. Vashisht, former chairperson, Prof. Dr. R.K. Pathak, the present chairperson, Department of anthropology, Panjab University, for providing all the necessary facilities for conducting this study.

I express my thanks to Dr. Madan Gulati, Assistant Director, U.T. (Ayurveda & Homeopathy), without his enthusiastic support, it would not have been possible to collect the necessary data about the Government Ayurvedic Health Services in Chandigarh. I would like to thank the doctors, pharmacists and patients of Ayurvedic dispensaries and Pandit Kedar Nath Memorial Ayurvedic Hospital, Sector 46-B for providing the valuable information in an extremely friendly manner. I am also thankful to the officials of Health Department, Chandigarh Administration for rendering me their valuable help in authenticating various facts regarding my study.

I acknowledge the kind help provided to me by the office staff of Department of Anthropology and A.C. Joshi Library, Panjab University.

I am grateful to all my friends, particularly Mr. Inderjit Singh, Mr. Sumanjit, Mr. Rajesh Kumar and Mr. Bhagwant Singh, for their constant help and inspiration in carrying out this venture.

I owe a very special debt to my parents, without whose constant encouragement and blessings, none of this would have been possible.

Sincere thanks are due to PCS Zone (Graphics Division), Sector 15, for typesetting and giving the final shape to this thesis.

(Kanwar Gurpreet Singh)
