ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I am grateful to my supervisor Dr. Sumer Lal Goel, M.A. (Political Science and Public Administration), Ph.D., Head of the Department of Public Administration, Directorate of Correspondence Courses, Panjab University, Chandigarh, for his initiative, continuous guidance, valuable advice, constant encouragement, immense help and keen interest in the completion of this thesis.

I can hardly put into words my sense of gratitude and indebtedness to my worthy Principal Krishan Singh Arya, who has enthused me to make this study both a profit and a pleasure.

I am beholden to my illustrious Professors S.K. Sharma and Satya Deva, Department of Public Administration, Panjab University, for their advice and encouragement at all the stages of the work.

I also owe my profound debt of gratitude to Dr. S.L. Kaushik, Head of the Department of Public Administration, Panjab University, for his constant help and useful suggestions in the preparation of this thesis.

My words of gratitude can only reach in approximation of my inner feelings to Professor B.S. Khanna, M.A. Ph.D. (London), the former Head of the Department of Public Administration and Dean, University Instructions, Panjab University.
His paternal care and guidance have been a source of great inspiration to me.

I extend my sincere thanks to my colleagues Dr. B.B.Goel, Dr. R.K.Sapru, Dr. K.K.Sharma and Shri A.K.Chand, for their assistance, support and co-operation.

I am deeply obliged to the various officers, particularly Sarvshri Satpal Bhambri, B.S.Pabra and Narinder Kumar Agnihotri, in the Directorate of Agriculture, Punjab, for their willing co-operation. Discussions with all these officers have been highly revealing, stimulating and enlightening.

I gratefully acknowledge my indebtedness to my numerous friends, who must remain unnamed but whose valuable assistance I have invariably drawn upon. They have taken great pains in reading most of my manuscripts and kept my spirits up.
