CHAPTER VII

Education in Pondicherry (1914 - 1954)

I. Introduction

The first decade of the twentieth century in France was marked by conflicts between the Left and Right, between Radicals and Socialists on the one hand, and conservatives and Royalists on the other. In the latter, the army and the church were very influential. As for the army, its higher offices were transferred from the Royalists to Republicans, and from conservatives to radicals. In respect of the Catholic Church, it was met through the Associations Act which has been mentioned in the previous chapter under laicisation.

The forty years between 1914 and 1954 saw two World Wars, i.e., the first from 1914 - 1918 and the second from 1939 - 1945. Following the disastrous defeat of France, she signed the Armistice treaty with Germany on 2 June 1940 and shortly after with Italy. It practically ended the Third French Republic which had lasted for seventy years from the military defeat of 1870, through the victory in 1918, to the humiliating defeat in 1940. France emerged from the second world war in a very weakened condition. General De Gaulle set up at Paris a 'Provisional Government' which authorised the popular election in October 1945 and national assembly to draft a constitution for the 'Fourth Republic'. This constitution was rejected by a majority of over a million votes at the plebiscite held in May 1946. France was torn by partisan strife and class conflict. The French overseas territory which before the war had been second only to the British in area and population, encountered difficulties and met with set backs. In the hope of holding together the French Colonial empire and allaying native discontent, the Fourth Republic, by the constitution of 1946, created a French Union, comprising mainland France and the overseas départements of Algeria, Martinique, Guadeloupe, Reunion and Guiana and associated territories of French West Africa, French Equatorial Africa, Madagascar, Comora, French Somaliland, New Caledonia, and French Oceania, and the associated states of Morocco, Tunisia, Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos. The union however failed to satisfy the national aspirations of the natives.

In June 1947, the Marshall plan was launched to hasten the economic recovergy of war torn Europe and to strengthen their resistance to communism. Nevertheless the national liberation movements were strong which led to the disintegration of the French empire. The French in India decided to hand over their enclaves in India which was marked by the Treaty of Cession signed between India and France on 1, November 1954.

At the beginning of the twentieth century, science was no longer an avocation of the upper and middle classes. It was by now an honourable vocation for any person of talent and the masses as well as the classes were coming under its spell.
As the pursuit of natural science quickened, it not only enriched the contents of Physics and Chemistry, Geology and Biology, but also stimulated a like development of 'Social' studies - sociology and anthropology, economics, statistics, geography and history which came to be labelled as social sciences. It may in other words be said that the scientific advances of the preceding two centuries gave rise to a veritable explosion of knowledge. It inspired the scientists and the intellectuals of the time to construct new systems of thought which had even wider and more profound consequences than the metaphysics which had attended the scientific
II. Press In Pondicherry

The first quarter of the twentieth century Pondicherry was marked by the growth of the vernacular press, which came to assert its predominance. This was also the period which attracted to Pondicherry such literary luminaries as Sri Aurobindo, Subramania Bharathi, V. Ramassamy (Va Ra) and V.V.S Iyer who in turn contributed so much to enrich the field of journalism in Pondicherry. There were then the a crop of Tamil scholars such as Periasami Pillai, Bangaru Pathar, V. Doraisamy Mudaliar and others who upheld the great heritage of the language mustered so to say by the French Indian Administration, through its support to the course known as Brevet de langue indigène.

The period between 1925 and 1954 was another watershed in the history of the Fourth Estate in Pondicherry.

The visits of Mahatma Gandhi & Jawaharlal Nehru to Pondicherry and the events of the freedom movements in India in the thirties created great impacts among the enlightened leaders of Pondicherry. The thirties also witnessed a deep ferment among the working class and a growing clamour for better working conditions and trade unions rights. Added to this, the great economic depression and its concomitants of low production, retrenchment, unemployment and labour unrest added to the misery of the people. The events connected with the labour movement, culminating in the July massacre was responsible for the articulation of public opinion. The period also saw the growing influence of the self-respect movement led by E.V. Ramasamy Naicker. The out break of World War II in 1939 also had its effect and the journals had in turn much to evite about. The Franco Indou Partie held sway in Pondicherry till the end of World War II. The position held by this party was taken over by Front Populaire which remained in power for a short period only to be replaced by the French India Socialist party in 1948. There were one or more journals either supporting or opposing the policies of one or other of these political parties which functioned in the territory. The Governor and the administration came under the attack of some journals which led to their suppression in the year 1938. The journals 'Sudandiram', 'Sugabiviruthini' and Kudiarasu were banned accordingly. Further, certain restrictions were placed on the press in 1944 as a war time measure. Violation of these measures entailed imprisonment for a period ranging from one to five years and a fine ranging from 1000 to one million francs. Naturally the journals turned out to be very cautious in their comments.

The declaration of independence for British India in 1947 brought about a new awakening among the people leading to a great upsurge. It was also period of considerable political tension. Journals advocating the cause of Pondicherry's freedom had to encounter many difficulties. By the arrêté of 14 October 1954, the Secrétaire Général imposed a ban provisionally on the publication of all journals, reviews and periodicals in any language other than French. However the arrêté dated 26 October 1954 repealed the above said suspension order only four days before de facto merger. Thus the system of education that prevailed in Pondicherry during this period was such that it did not hamper the freedom of thought of the people.

III. Primary Education

Arrêté of 8, October 1915 is important as far as Primary Education is concerned. This was subsequently modified by the arrêté of 28 June 1927. This arrêté introduced the examination known as Certificat d'Études Primaires de Langue Indigène (Basic Primary Certificate of Indian Language). (See Appendix. 22) The text of the arrêté is given here.

These schools are attached to the following central schools:

That of Archivack at the Ariankuppam central school,
That of Kirmampakkam at central school Bahour,
That of Adivipolom at the central school Yanam.

Article 2

The Chief Administrator is in charge of execution of the present decree published in Journal officiel.

Arrêté of 8th September 1925 is related the examination, Brevet Élémentaire and Brevet Supérieur which was modified by the four arrêtés of:

- 26 March 1926,
- 21 May 1928,
- 2 April 1929,
- 2 March 1934.

(Arrêté of 12th August 1927 created for primary and higher education two new classes in the third and fourth years for the preparation of Brevet Élémentaire in Calve college.)
Expansion of education by the French administration was resorted to:

1) by opening more schools,

2) by opening more classes.

Decision of 27th December 1928 fixed up the salary of teachers of French and Indian languages.

This shows the steps taken by the government towards teachers welfare.

Arrêté of 12th April 1929 speaks of the conditions of including Tamil in the examination of Brevet de Capacité colonial which was equivalent to baccalauréat.

Arrêté of 20 February 1931 opened a third class in central schools in Thirubuvanai.

This shows the opening of more classes.

Arrêté of 13 April 1931 is related to a school canteen created in Central School for boys in surcouf street.

This indicates the student welfare measures on the part of the government.

Arrêté of 16 May 1931 re established the co-educational school in Canacalapetta (Yanam).

It speaks of the expansion of education with a new form and also re opening the school.

Arrêté of 5 June 1931 is about the creation of sixth form in Mahé section of Caïve college.

It talks on the expansion of education in a new form.

Arrêté of 29 June 1932 re established mixed school at Melacassacoudy and also re attached it to the Central School at a Corroumbagaroma.
This is also about the expansion of Education

By the arrêté of 3rd August 1932:

1. Elementary section of boys school Mahé was doubled;
2. A second class and a post of needle work teacher was created in the co-education school at Lawspet.

This also shows the expansion of education.

It is to be noted that:

1. Opening of a new school is important.
2. Opening of more classes is equally important.
3. It also shows that there is a demand and the demand stands fulfilled.

It is a clear indication of people oriented development.

Arrêté of 23 September 1932 re established the school at Pandakal (Mahé)

Arrêté of 4 February 1933 the post of a teacher in the girl's school in Dumas street was abolished and the number of sections in kindergarten classes in Pensionnat des Jeunes Filles was increased.

Hence, regarding kindergarten is nothing new and is not a post merger development. Already it was in existence during the colonial education in Pondicherry.

By the Arrêté of 2 March 1933:

1. The post of needle work teacher in the girls school at Grand Aldee, Karaikal was abolished,
2. The post of a teacher of local language was created in the same school,
3. A section of local language in Muthirapalayam was also doubled,

It is to be noted that Grand Aldee, Karailkal Muthirapalayam, Pondicherry were important villages during this time and hence the efforts of the government in establishing schools here is noteworthy.

It also shows the growing importance of education in the native language.

By arrêté of 4 February 1933, a co-educational government school was created at Tengatittou, Modeliarpet

This speaks of the expansion of schools in Pondicherry once again.

By arrêté of 8 May 1933, the decree of 28th June 1927 was revoked in modifying the articles of the decree of 19th November 1910 relating to the examination of brevet de langue indigène (brevet of Indian language).

Arrêté of 22 June 1934 created a class for the preparation of brevet supérieur with three years studies in Collège Colonial.

This gives an idea of starting of New courses in Pondicherry.

Although progress was registered in the field of Education in Pondicherry, on the whole, it was however felt that the progress achieved in the field of literacy was not commensurate with the expenditure incurred for the purpose.

Addressing the Conseil Général in the year 1936, Governor Groccichia stated that he was "amazed to see the vast majority of the population still illiterate". He further pointed out the administration could provide education only to 11,500 Children (This did not include the 5500 students in private schools) out of 45000, in the establishments. It appears that the number of school going children had remained at around 16500 for almost 35 years from 1901-1936. He attributed it to lack of facilities such as buildings and other things. Although there was qualitative improvement, quantitatively it was not found very satisfactory.
Governor Croccichia further pointed out that an amount of Rs. 4,07,000 representing about 12 percent of the total revenue was spent on men and materials. Yet in all only 150 students had enrolled for course known as Certificat d'Études Français et Indigène. Only 27 students had enrolled for Brevet Élémentaire and first eight for Baccalauréat.

Pushing further his analysis, he showed that it worked out to an expenditure of Rs. 2500 to produce one candidate of Certificat d'Études. Whereas in France he said, only 1/10 amount was required. This high cost of providing education may be attributed to very low enrollment on the one hand and the distance of schools for most students especially in the rural areas which the Governor has not highlighted. Nevertheless even in those areas where the schools were located, the enrollment might not have been adequate, probably because, the natives had not yet realized the need for education for success in life and career.

Nevertheless in the light of the above state of affairs, the Governor put forward some suggestions for the growth of education in the establishments. These included carrying out some improvements in Collège Calvé, opening of an additional school for girls in Pondicherry and opening of mixed schools i.e. for boys and girls in Abhishekapakkam, Muthirapalayam, and Thirumalrayan pattinam. All three of them were considered to be large village settlements of agriculturists and well to do farmers. This evidently revealed the realization on the part of these administration to take education closer to the doorsteps of villagers so as to achieve some measure of qualitative improvement.

It is not known to what extent the suggestion put forward by Governor Croccichia were acted upon. However, towards the end of the decade, France and to some extent French India had to face considerable strains on its finances due to the capitulation of France to Fascist Germany.

After the second World War, the Marshall plan was launched for the recovery of war ravaged Europe. It was in these circumstances, a programme for the socio-economic development of the French establishments in India was drawn up to be financed by Le Fonds d'Investissement pour le Développement Economique et Social, popularly known as FIDES which was launched in the year 1948. The programme as conceived then included besides irrigation, water supply, education as well as public health. The programme envisaged the construction of 12 schools in Pondicherry and seven in Karaikal.

During 1949-50, the construction work of schools at Pakkamudayanpet, Karikilam pakkam, Kattukuppam, Madukkarai and Kariamanikkam was completed.

Nevertheless the number of school going children in March 1949 was 9528 out of 10,843 in March 1950. The number of students in Primary schools increased by 1,315.

The ministerial telegram of 1943 carried the modification of the order of September 1843 regarding Public Education in India.6

Order repealing the decree of 17th April 1943 appointing the post of teachers of Primary Education and assigning the personal belongings to this post in the teaching (male and female) of primary education.7

The text of the arrêté is given here.

Considering that the post of teachers of École Primaire Supérieur superfluous that his institution does not reply to an absolute necessity, that assistant professors is qualified to assure the number of the teaching of 2nd degree.

Seen the report no. 1151 of August 1946 of the Chief Administrator and his proposal

IV. Secondary Education

The French Indian Administration spent as much as 53,000 francs per annum for secondary education towards the end of the 1870s. In spite of it, the standard of secondary education was very low with very poor results. There were at that time only 141 students in all, and Gramboulan, l'Inspecteur d'Académie who visited Pondicherry during this time wanted the number to be raised to 200. He therefore called for improvement of the standard of education and increase the number of scholarships. He further recommended the opening of a college in Karaikal (Secondary education was imparted by institutions which carried the nomenclature of colleges).

It was mentioned earlier that five arrêtés were issued on one and the same date i.e. 25 March 1885 re organising the whole system of education in French India of which the fourth and fifth arrêtés pertained to Secondary education.
Secondary education registered significant progress since the beginning of the twentieth century. Among the factors which contributed to the popularity of secondary education was the introduction of the course known a Brevet Supérieur in Pensionnat des Jeunes Filles for the benefit of girls and the introduction of Cours Secondaires in Karaikal in the year 1918.

Arrêté of 30 May 1918 is related to secondary education in the colleges. This arrêté is followed.

The Educational system introduced in India by the French after their arrival had now come under a solid footing. It had nurtured and grown up in the peaceful atmosphere taking into account the needs and aspirations of the local people. The French republican ideas had been transplanted into the Indian soil by now. Along with the teaching of French language in the colony, the teaching of English and Tamil had also been taken into account. Their efforts were successful in the colony. All these indicate the benevolent measures of the French administration towards their subjects in the French Indian establishments.
